LENNOX COUNTY FAIR

Had good average attendance this year and nothing to complain of in the way of exhibits. In some of the classes of farm produce the exhibits were not up in size to those of former years, no doubt due to the dry season this year. The quality was splendid however.

The Baby Show in the palace on Monday evening drew a good large attendance, fairly well up to the average, but not as large as in some years when there were no rival attractions. A long line of babies were entered in the contest and the following were the prize winners:—

Special Prize, baby boy—Mrs. J. Ashton Amey.

Boys—First, Mrs. McTaggart; Second, Mrs. Peter McLaughlin; Third, Mrs. B. Thompson.

Girls—First, Mrs. F. Irwin; Second, Mrs. Gourlay; Third, Mrs. Reeder.

Judges—Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Roblin. The Napanee Band furnished an attractive musical programme and the exhibits in the palace all looked bright and attractive. The merchants' displays were all splendid, as usual, and a credit to each and every one of them.

SUITS FAVORITES!

All through our splendid Fall and Winter Suit display the new Greys and Browns are easily the favorites.

Grey is always a pleasing color—restful to the eye and never tiring.

Brown, too, is an unobtrusive color—lending itself to many varieties of shading and to many forms of pattern.

Just as our styles are exclusive so too will you find the same characteristic distinction in the materials used in our "Progress Clothes."

Our new English Models of Suits are very striking.

Prices that will please and satisfy.

J. L. BOYES,

PRESENTATION TO

On Monday afternoon about twenty of the leading citizens of Napanee, representing the business men, the town council, the school board and citizens generally, met in the Dominion Bank and presented Mr. Hill with an address and a substantial purse, as a token of the esteem in which he is held by the community in general. Mr. Hill made an appropriate reply thanking the donors for their gift and spirit in which it was given.

To Mr. DUDLEY L. HILL,
Manager, The Dominion Bank,
Napanee, Ont.

DEAR MR. HILL,—
On behalf of your numerous friends in Napanee we desire to express our deep regret that you have been summoned to sever your connection with us and to take up your abode elsewhere. You have been actively associated with all that interests our town for many years, and have freely and cheerfully placed your services at the disposal of our people. It is your willingness to work, your capacity for work and your good natured zeal in your work, that has won for you the esteem and admiration of the general body of citizens. Those who have been more closely associated with you, whether it be in the up-building of our educational institutions, the never ending task of the different branches of Church work, the fostering of our public charities or in the field of athletic sports, all unanimously testify to the valuable

POLICE COURT

On Friday last R. R. Walters and Andrew McGregor appeared before Police Magistrate Rankin, of Napanee, to answer a complaint charging them with assault upon Mr. Charles Anderson, on the evening of Tuesday the 5th day of September. It appears that after the conclusion of a public meeting at the Village of Croydon, in the interests of Dr. Vrooman, the Liberal Candidate, when Mr. Anderson was going from the hall to get his horse which was in a stable a few rods distant, he was set upon and roughly handled by four young men from the Village of Tamworth. Mr. Anderson's counsel announced that the two defendants had come voluntarily to his office and had expressed their deep regret for their rowdiness, and offered to make such amends as lay in their power. Mr. Anderson with a generosity most commendable under the circumstances, stated that he did not wish to appear vindictive, nor to carry the proceedings any further than was necessary to meet the ends of justice and teach others who might be similarly inclined that in this county freedom of speech was the privilege of every citizen. The informations were accordingly withdrawn, upon payment by the defendants of all costs and expenses incurred by the complainant who declined to accept any witness fees, and upon their signing the following apology which was given to both local papers for publication.

Napanee, Sept. 15th, 1911.

"We hereby apologize to Mr. Chas. Anderson for the unprovoked assault committed upon him by us on the evening of Sept. 5th, at the Village of Croydon.

(Sgd) R. J. Walters.
(Sgd) Andrew McGregor.
Witness—(Sgd) W. S. Herrington.

His Worship in allowing the information to be withdrawn congratulated Mr. Anderson upon the liberal spirit shown by him towards the young men and stated that if the assault had been committed during the progress of a meeting, he would have insisted upon proceeding with the charge, as liberty of speech was too sacred a privilege to be trifled with. Informations have been laid against the others who took part in the assault.

Since the foregoing report was written R. E. McAfee and C. R. Craig appeared before the police magistrate, signed similar apologies and paid all costs incurred in their prosecution.

The tournament was scheduled for 18 holes but as some of the players were unable to complete the full course the scores at the end of the first round were counted for the result.

After the completion of the tournament the players and their friends gathered on the lawn at the clubhouse and Mr. Hill was presented with a club pennant and a stick pin. He replied with fitting language to the presentation address and expressed his sorrow at having to leave those friends with whom he had enjoyed so many matches. In concluding he suggested that all join in one last six hole match as a finale and accordingly the match was played. Some of the players were not proud of the record made at this time.

The Golf Club will miss Mr. Hill. He was always ready to play in any match whether at home or away, and although not the best player in the club he could generally be relied upon to beat his man.

BAY CENTRE.

Reciprocity is the order of the day. Mr. Edgar Salisbury, Bethel is spending a few days at the home of Mr. Herbert McCabe.

A number of our young ladies and gentlemen attended the opera in Napanee on Monday evening.

Mr. McDonald, Napanee will preach at the Sand Hill Presbyterian church on Sunday September 24th at 10.30 a. m.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Dryden, Miss Grace Dryden and Mrs. R. E. Wales and son, Roy of Napanee, and Mrs. B. Bulles, and Miss Gladys Vandewater, of Rochester spent Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. W. T. McCabe.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashton McCabe spent Thursday last at Mr. Nelson Dingman's.

Miss Bessie McCabe spent Sunday with her cousin, Miss Emma McCabe.

On the 15th day of September, duck hunting opened under the new game protective association and Mr. Herbert McCabe and Mr. Wilmot Post surprised their friends by bringing home with them forty-nine fine ducks which they had shot.

Apple picking has already commenced but the crop will not be as heavy this year as on other years on account of so dry a spring.

Some of our farmers have started fall ploughing while others are busy digging potatoes, and also picking tomatoes for the canning factory.

Many people are doing their house and barn painting in the Fall. Be sure you get our prices and the colors and material we are able to furnish you. The Medical Hall—Fred L. Hooper.

The Imperial Oriental Troupe of Marionettes will put the following programme on both days of the Picton Fair: (1) La Flecho and Campo, comedy acrobats in the funny trick house act. (2) Berido Cloun, juggler, the funniest man in America. (3) The Boscoe Burlesque wild animal show, introducing the giant rooster and goose, a splendid attraction. (4) Lo Mothe in his balancing trapeze act. His wonderful performance will delight both old and young. (5) The Imperial Marionette Act. Another very interesting performance will be the patriotic drills and choruses by the public school children of the County in competition for a silver trophy and flag. There will also be good horse races and a baseball match between the Park Nine of Kingston and Picton. If you want to enjoy a good day's sport the Str. Brockville will take you to Picton on Thursday, Sept. 28th.

Hair Dye.

We have the "old fashioned hair restorer" that restores the hair to its natural color. It is not a nitrate of silver dye that shows on the hair so everybody can see that the hair has been dyed, but a "color restorer". It is put up in $1.00 bottles, and can be procured in Napanee only at Wallace's Drug Store—The Rexall Agency.

See our beautiful pianos at A. E. Paul's book and music store, Napanee.

The peace conference of economists and sociologists which was held at Berne, Switzerland, recently, took action which insures a scientific study of the causes and the consequences of war as well as of peace. Questions are to be formulated in a strictly scientific spirit, and then answers to these questions will be sought of the deepest and soundest thinkers in the world. It is the generous Carnegie Peace Foundation that has rendered this study possible. It cannot be doubted that on the platform and in popular propaganda scientific data of the kind contemplated will be of great service. The militarists and skeptics have stock arguments, stock questions and ancient fallacies which they regard as irrefutable, and the average man is often imposed upon by their air of practical hard-headedness.

Among the questions that should be put and answered is that of a moral equivalent of war. The late Professor James dealt with this phase suggestively and brilliantly, but more searching treatment is required. What virtues does war really develop? Is peace really enervating and emasculating? Are there no enterprises, struggles and labors in industrial life which tend to foster self-subordination, co-operation, decision, discipline, efficiency—which are regarded for some reason as "military" qualities? Cannot the youth of a nation be trained to service and endurance and team-work without shedding human life, maiming and crippling human bodies, destroying wealth and spreading misery, disease, anguish, brutality, hatred?

The happy and successful home might seem to be, like virtue, its own reward. But an association in England takes a different view. It is offering annual prizes of $50 for the best kept home—regard being had for ways and means, the number and ages of the children, and other pertinent considerations. The association has begun modestly in one or two provincial towns, but hopes to bring the whole kingdom under its beneficent sway.

It is by no means sure that happiness in the domestic circle, is a condition that can be bribed into being, or that cash payments can be depended upon to produce neatness and cheer where pride and affection have failed. Yet a good example, brought about by whatever means, is likely to be contagious. One "home," reformed on the basis of cash inducements, may drop the seed of suggestion to dozens of other households where a characterless routine has been but awaiting the demonstration of a better way. Such a demonstration, here

THE FARM

Useful Hints for the Tiller of the Soil

FOR THE HOG RAISER.

If pigs farrowed early in March do not reach 275 pounds by the first week of November there is something wrong about the feeding.

Oregon Experiment Station shows that one acre of good clover for growing hogs represents a value of $44.

Too much corn for the brood sow means small litters.

Too many farmers kill their good brood sows because of the temptation to sell for the high prices. This is a mistake.

While there is considerable investment in the brood sows, still it pays better to keep the good ones because they will produce more uniform pigs, more of them and will raise them better.

It is a good plan to soak shelled corn for the hogs and if it is ground before it is soaked so much the better.

Oats for the brood sow will produce better muscle for the pigs.

The ultimate end of the hog is pork and the quicker the growth to market maturity the more profit there is in it for the feeder.

COWS MUST HAVE A REST.

Too many farmers milk their cows from calf to calf. In some states the law forbids the selling of milk of cows within two weeks of calving or five days after. This rest is none too long and in fact young heifers would do better if they were given a longer rest before calving.

We once heard a farmer at County Institute defend his practice of milking his cows up to the last moment on the ground that he worked every day and wanted his cows to do the same.

A woman asked him if he did not rest on Sunday and he rather shamefacedly replied that he worked every day in the week, particularly during the summer months.

Not much use arguing with a man like that, but experience shows that it is much better for the health and usefulness of the cow, especially heifers, to give her at least a month's rest during the year.

A cow is a milk machine it is true and we want to get all we can out of her, but like machines made of steel and wood, she must be given time for repairs or she will wear out all too quickly.

NOTES OF THE SHEEPFOLD.

Sheep are comfort lovers and the man who neglects to provide them with good, dry shelter makes a costly error.

Many a bunch of promising feeders go to the country and return with indication of being half starved.

It is the gains that the lambs make during the fall that determine the feeder's profits.

Hothouse lamb is now as popular as baby-beef and an up-to-date ing game to confine any number of young chickens in a close, ily-ventilated house during the hot weather.

All houses should be so arranged that the entire south front is made of wire netting in order to insure cleanliness and perfect ventilation.

As the young birds come along about this time of the year many of them will show signs of weakness, refusing their feed and moping about. Take them away from the flock instantly and place them in a coop by themselves.

If ailing birds do not recover within two or three days, off with their heads and burn their bodies.

If the poultry house is an old one why not burn it down now and build a new one? Better now than in November.

Generally a little planning will enable one to move the poultry house to a new spot of ground and plow up the old. Excellent plan.

RUSSIA'S NEW NAVY.

Dreadnoughts, Torpedo Cruisers and Destroyers.

At last Russia is making definite headway with the building of a powerful fleet for the Black Sea. A credit of $60,000,000 was granted for the purpose by the Duma and all of it and more has been allocated this week. The additional $10,000,000 necessitated by the irreducible figures quoted by the contractors will doubtless be granted when the House meets.

Two Dreadnoughts will be laid down on October 1 (old style) at the new yard on the Black Sea prepared by a combination of Russian metallurgical companies under the technical and managerial direction of the British firm of John Brown & Co. of Sheffield and Clydebank. A third Dreadnought will be laid down a month later at the Nicolai-eff yard, also on the Black Sea, and its construction will be under the supervision of the British firm of Vickers.

It was first intended that each Dreadnought should be 25,000 tons displacement and have 24 knots speed, but the cost would have been far beyond the appropriation and it was decided that they should have 21,500 tons displacement and from 21 to 21½ knots. Each of these battleships will cost rather over $14,000,000 and yet will be about $50 a ton cheaper than the Dreadnoughts built at St. Petersburg for the Baltic fleet. The economy is due to the cheapness of coal at the Black Sea as compared with the north.

The remainder of the new Black Sea fleet, which is doubtless intended to cope with Turkey or with the Powers that take over the revision of Turkey's strategic position, consists of nine torpedo cruisers and destroyers and six submarines. Each torpedo cruiser will have 1,

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, SEPTEMBER 24.

Lesson XIII.—Daniel in the Lions' den, Dan. 6. Golden Text, Psa. 34. 7.

Verse 1. Darius—He was the general, apparently (the Greek name Gobryas being similar in form), who was in command of the combined forces of Persia and Media when Babylon was captured. He took control of the city as governor. The statements concerning him, here and in other parts of the book, exhibiting him as a royal personage ruling over an extensive kingdom, are difficult to understand in light of the known history of these times. There may be some confusion between this man and the Darius Hystaspes of the book of Ezra, the father of Xerxes.

Satraps—A strictly Persian word, signifying a ruler of a province. The word is found frequently also in Ezra and Esther.

2. Presidents—Princes. A word found nowhere else in the Old Testament except in this chapter. This was the plan Belshazzar had in mind (compare previous chapter). These three men acted as a kind of check upon the satraps, so that the treasure and revenue of the king were properly protected.

3. Was distinguished—That is, in the old sense of prefer, was advanced or promoted, given a superior standing.

4. Sought to find occasion—This Daniel, a captive Jew, had been exalted to the highest honors of the kingdom; and this in spite of his severe judgments upon the ruling power. His integrity and wisdom were unimpeachable. A narrow, bitter spirit of jealousy, however, will find vent somewhere, and since there was no proof of disloyalty or negligence in Daniel's discharge of the duties of the kingdom, his enemies found an object of attack in his method of worship according to the Jewish law (5).

6. Assembled together to the king—The phrase in the original is very much more vivid. It means that they came rushing tumultuously into the king's presence, defying every rule of court etiquette, so eager were they to let loose their wrath against their hated rival.

7. All the presidents—Daniel, of course, was excepted; it is easy to believe, intentionally. The enumeration of all the chief officers of the realm gave the plot the semblance of unanimous action.

A royal statute—Although the leading men had consulted to establish this decree, their meaning was, of course, that they intended to prevail upon the king to establish it. It was a monstrous proposition. Only a ruler who was easily induced by flattery would consent to be exalted in this fashion above God and man. It is remarkable that Darius should have failed to consult his chief minister and adviser on a matter of such moment.

The den of lions—The den was a sort of pit, or vault. Lions were kept for the chase.

8. That it be not changed—The unalterableness of the edicts of the Medes and Persians, properly signed and sealed by the royal hand, means, likely to be contagious. One "home," reformed on the basis of cash inducements, may drop the seed of suggestion to dozens of other households where a characterless routine has been but awaiting the demonstration of a better way. Such a demonstration, here and there, is particularly needed in many big towns, where private effort can do much to overcome official indifference and negligence. There are neighborhoods in Canada where the stimulus of a small prize would promptly produce a good effect on both premises and people.

IDYL OF THE FARMYARD.

Gander Looked After Goose and Its Method of Feeding.

Homing instinct and marital affection have just been displayed in a remarkable way by a goose and a gander upon Cannington Farm, near Nailsea, Bristol, England.

Five years ago the goose was sold from the farm, and, passing into the stock of two successive owners, came into the hands of a third purchaser this year. This third purchaser lived close to the original farm from which the goose had gone out.

Directly after its return to the neighborhood the goose began to go back to the farm daily for the purpose of laying its eggs. This habit, which was encouraged and protected by an escorting gander, became so persistent that the first owner was forced to purchase the goose.

It was naturally impossible to omit the affectionate gander from the bargain, and the pair were transferred together to Cannington Farm. They immediately commenced an idyllic home life, which culminated during the nesting this year. It regularly prepared food for the goose with minute care. It would find a swede and then peck out the daintiest part of the centre and put in a heap for consumption.

As it could not avail itself of any such minute mechanism as a gong for announcing the fact, it would next spread its wings and call the goose off the nest. When the meal was satisfactorily finished under its supervision, the gander led the goose to a pond, where the pair took a short swim.

The nest was then regained in company, and the gander watched over the goose until the time for the same exhibitions of affection arrived next day.

SMOKING AND CANCER.

It is accepted that cancer on the tongue is very commonly associated with, and preceded by, leucoplakia, but (says the "Hospital") the occurrence of the leucoplakia does not seem to bear any constant relation to indulgence in excessive smoking. People who smoke from morning till night often have healthy mouths, and on the other hand some quite moderate smokers have a white patch on that part of their tongue where smoke has constantly impinged. Irritation caused by jagged tooth, or by some condition of a stopping is undoubtedly an important factor which has to be reckoned with.

Even if a man fights but one duel he has a second.

Many a bunch of promising feeders go to the country and return with indication of being half starved.

It is the gains that the lambs make during the fall that determine the feeder's profits.

Hothouse lamb is now as popular as baby-beef and an up-to-date flockman does not keep his lambs until they are fully matured unless for breeding purposes.

No female can expect to transmit to her offspring better qualities than she possesses herself unless she is mated with a sire with greater prepotency.

Do not go into sheep breeding. Grow into it. Begin in a small way. You will find many unexpected problems constantly coming up and if you go into it largely at first you will find a great deal of trouble and disappointment. There is much that has to be learned by long and thoughtful experience.

POULTRY NOTES.

It is not only cruel, but a loss

Black Sea as compared with the north. The remainder of the new Black Sea fleet, which is doubtless intended to cope with Turkey or with the Powers that take over the revision of Turkey's strategic position, consists of nine torpedo cruisers and destroyers and six submarines. Each torpedo cruiser will have 1,050 tons displacement and 35 knots speed and each will cost $1,325,000. Each of the six submarines will cost $800,000.

OWED EVERYBODY.

Morrow—It makes me very uneasy if I owe a dollar to any one.

Borrow—Great Scott! If I felt that way about it I'd have St. Vitus' dance.

Oh, for a brand of good resolutions that even a strong man couldn't break!

Most family trees require a lot of whitewash to keep the insects off.

PLAIN TALK TO PREACHERS

From the Layman in the Pews This Appeal Rises to the Minister in the Pulpit.

What we want from you, sir, is but one thing—yourself.

If you preach Christ, it does us no good, unless you preach him in terms of your own personal life. The historic Christ and the doctrinal and tabulated Christ we can get from books as well as you.

We want no words from you except those that are red with your blood.

We do not want the Word, but the Word made Flesh.

We do not want you to arouse our emotions; we want to see you gripped by your own.

We do not want argument; we do not want anything proved to us; for where you lay one doubt you raise twenty.

We do not want information; all its sources are open to us as well as to you. We do not want science, history, or philosophy; we want of you what we want of the one great neighbor—heart.

Please go through your sermon before you bring it to us, and cut out every platitude, every fine-sounding phrase, everything that you will say just because you think your church requires it, or because it is your duty to say it. Give us only what you cannot help saying.

We ask you to compete with novels and stories in one thing—

HUMAN INTEREST.

We ask you to compete with poets in just one thing—vision.

We ask you to compete with men of science in just one thing—absolute honesty.

We ask you to compete with those who make us bad in just one thing—in that you like us.

We do not need your guidance; we need your confession—that shall most truly guide us.

Do not berate us; we know how bad we are. Do not dictate to us; for the soul leaps to truth and not authority. Do not urge us; for souls that can see need no urging.

Simply show us one who is in the clutch of some reality; then we shall be shamed and smitten, reborn and set on the right way.

Do not entertain us. You cannot compete with the actor. Strip your soul naked to us and show us what no man can simulate—life in its pure motion.

Speak low. The things you should have to say are secrets! Every man's religion is utterly modest; his most shrinking and sensitive vital spot.

Remember that we are interested in the ultimate things—love, life, God and death. Whenever you mention one of these things we are anxious to hear

IF YOU HAVE ANY LIGHT.

Remember, that the spirit of this age is not as the spirit of former ages. Learn these words of Griggs: "Our interest everywhere these days is in the distinctively personal. If one can tell openly and clearly the story of his own life, there are many who will find deep interest in this." Literature is becoming more and more autobiographical. It all means the deepening consciousness of the absolute significance of the human soul.

It is not doctrines any more we want. It is not theorems and saying formulas. We want doctrines incarnated, theorems shining through souls, formulas that are the aureoles of experience.

Holy church has become a trysting place for our souls with yours. We do not want to believe; we want to see.

We do not want gold any more, but the gold mine; not money, but the bank and mint; not the law, but the lawgiver; not the botany of Christ, but the rose of Christ; not the sermon, but the human being behind it. We, too, "seek not yours, but you!"

DR. FRANK CRANE.

that Darius should have raised to consult his chief minister and adviser on a matter of such moment.

The den of lions—The den was a sort of pit, or vault. Lions were kept for the chase.

8. That it be not changed—The unalterableness of the edicts of the Medes and Persians, properly signed and sealed by the royal hand, has become proverbial (Esther 1. 19, 8. 8).

9. King Darius signed the writing—It seems absurd that any king in his right senses should consent to a law that might easily be broken by every one of his subjects without his knowing it. He was soon to see the stupidity of his action.

10. When Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went—It was not likely that such a decree would make any difference at all to a man who had served God through all his career in a heathen land. The trial did not come to him in youth as it did to his three companions. He was an old man. His habit of a lifetime, which took him thrice daily to the roof chamber supplied with windows open toward Jerusalem in the direction of devotion (1 Kings 8. 44), was not to be thwarted by devices of men. No doubt he saw through the plot against him, and his courageous spirit rose in rebellion. His first duty was to his God.

Three times a day—Compare Psalm 55. 17. In later times, the three seasons for prayer were, at the offering of the morning sacrifice, at the offering of the evening meal, and at sunset. Jews in a strange land offered these prayers with their faces turned toward Israel; those in Israel, with faces toward Jerusalem; those in Jerusalem, with faces toward the temple.

11. Assembled together—Same meaning as before. They rushed about the house of Daniel in a most disorderly manner.

14. The king . . . was sore displeased—Compare Mark 6. 26. He saw that he had been duped. But his anger was mostly with himself for having been so easily deceived. He knew the value of Daniel, and all day, till sunset, labored strenuously to rescue him. As far as the scheming satraps and chamberlains, though they were greatly disappointed that the king's wrath was not awakened against this Daniel, of the children of the captivity of Judah, they were sure of their position. No law of the Medes and Persians (15), so they reminded him as they once more rushed before him without reverence for his royal person, might be changed. Dean Farrar suggests that if he had threatened to cast them into the lions' den, they might have entertained a different opinion about the reversibility of royal decrees.

16. He will deliver thee—This is rather in the form of a prayer that Daniel may in some way escape what seems a certain fate. The king's anxious solicitude indicates his high regard for his prime minister.

17. Sealed it with his own signet—Among all these Orientals, the use of the signet, or seal-ring, was common. These rings were very ancient. In order that there might be no change of purpose on the king's part, or anybody else's, concerning Daniel, a double precaution was taken—the signet of the lords was used as well as the king's.

18. Instruments of music—This reading is uncertain. It may mean dancing-girls, or concubines. But the sense is plain—Darius did not indulge himself in the customary pleasures of the court, but went to his private quarters supperless and spent a sleepless night.

20. Servant of the living God.—The expression is so striking that it seems certain that the king must have been impressed ere this that Daniel worshiped no god made by the hands of men.

23. Because he had trusted—Faith does, then, make a difference with God.

24. Their children and their wives.—In bringing vengeance upon the men who had so maliciously contrived against this good man, Darius had resorted to the cruel savagery of ancient times which confounded the innocent with the guilty.

25-27.—The decree of Darius, calling upon all his subjects to fear the wonder-working God of Daniel. Compare Daniel 3. 29 and 4. 1-3.

Fashion Hints

SEEN IN PARIS SHOPS.

Colors that predominate at fashionable gatherings abroad are royal blue, coronation red, and empire green.

Some of the brighter satin sailor collars so much liked are veiled with mousseline the color of the dress or wrap.

Hat crowns may be high or low, the majority of hats showing high crowns are narrow of brim, a feature which emphasizes the height.

Pierrot millinery in velour, scratch beaver, or French felt with high round topped crowns and slightly rolled brims will be a popular feature of this fall's millinery.

Parisiennes are wearing a great deal of silk fringe, even on their petticoats. This denotes a tendency toward fanciful modes.

Pale colored parasols are much seen in lace or plaited mousseline de cole, edged with a wide silk border or with one of flowered pompadour ribbon, or of black velvet.

Thick rouleaux of satin finish the waists of one piece dresses and are twisted and arranged as ornaments at the top of the back panel, usually fastened at the side.

One of the uses to which satins will be put during the early fall will be for making of foundations to be worn in connection with sheer, semi-sheer, and silken materials.

There is a definite return of the vogue for bordered materials in dressmaking, and some delightful effects may be obtained from the beautiful things just coming into the shops.

The length of the new sleeve has not been settled. The great Paris designers show long sleeves, short sleeves, bell sleeves, tight sleeves, and puff sleeves with about equal favor.

The use of the large collar is no doubt responsible for the popularity of the large revers. Some are long and narrow, coming down below the waist line. Others are square and a few round.

Large hats have returned to their own again; the small round hats are not sufficiently becoming to the majority of faces, and in the late summer every one wants as much

JAPANESE COMMANDMENTS

THEY ARE REASONABLE, SATISFACTORY AND NATURAL.

Slow Inductions of Millions of Experiences—Democratic and Available.

There can be no doubt that the majority of these Japanese rules are nearer scientific exactitude than the rules of Moses or than the ordinary practice of modern English life. Here are the Japanese commandments:

(1) Spend as much time as possible in the open air.

(2) Never eat more than once a day.

(3) Take a very hot bath daily.

(4) Wear rough, warm clothes.

(5) Early to bed and early to rise.

(6) Sleep at least six hours each night, and at most seven and a half in a dark room with open windows.

(7) Rest on the seventh day, and during that day do not read or write.

(8) Avoid every expression of anger; never exercise the brain too much or too long.

(9) Marry early; widows and widowers should re-marry as soon as possible.

(10) Drink coffee and tea in strict moderation; do not smoke at all; and never touch alcohol in any form.

(11) Avoid hot rooms, and, indeed, all rooms heated artificially.

(12) In order to strengthen such organs as may be weakened by age or use, nourish yourself on the corresponding organs of animals.

COUNSELS OF PERFECTION.

Most of these precepts are excellent and of general if not of universal acceptance. Nos. 1, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, and even 11—that is, nine out of the twelve—can be regarded as counsels of perfection for everyday use. On the other hand No. 12 is manifestly childish; one does not strengthen the stomach by eating the stomach of a rabbit or a cow or hen, nor one's skin by eating the hide of bull or lamb. No. 12 may be rejected in toto or left to Dr. Brown-Sequard and his benighted followers.

THE COLD BATH.

No. 3 comes under a different head. A few years ago it was the practice of doctors in England to recommend a cold tub daily. Prize-fighters and athletes were the first, I believe, to modify the unpleasant recommendation. They used massage and dry rubbing in preference to cold dips or douches. It may be laid down as an axiom that all persons with weak circulation or feeble heart-action or those inclined to rheumatism should eschew cold baths—and inordinately hot baths too, though these latter are less likely to be injurious. No. 3, then, can be accepted in a general form—"take a warm bath daily," or even more generally, "take care to keep the pores of the skin open either by friction or by bathing or by both."

No. 2 is also to be accorded with some modifications. In northern climates it may be advisable for those who are taking much bodily exercise to eat meat twice or even thrice a day, at any rate in youth

The Home

Notes of Particular Interest to Women Folks

FAVORITE DISHES.

Jellied Prunes.—Stew about two dozen large prunes, when cold remove stones. Take the same amount of almonds, blanch and brown them, put one almond in each prune. Take one-half cupful of gelatin and put over it just enough water to cover. Heat the juice of prunes and measure out one pint and pour over gelatin, have the juice boiling hot. Add one-half cupful of sugar and the juice of three lemons, strain and pour over prunes. Put this in a mold and when served cut a piece from the center and fill with whipped cream, or use for a salad with mayonnaise dressing.

Cold Berry Pudding.—To a quart of blueberries add three-quarters of a cupful of granulated sugar and one-half of a cupful of water and boil five minutes. Spread five thin slices of bread with butter and put one in the bottom of a buttered baking dish. Pour over it enough of the hot fruit to cover it and alternate with bread and fruit, having a layer of the berries on top. Don't cook, but simply set aside to cool and serve ice cold with cream. It is greatly improved by putting a very soft frosting on top. Boil one cupful granulated sugar and three tablespoonfuls of water until it almost threads, and stir into it the stiffly beaten white of one egg.

Sweet Potato Corn Bread.—One pint of mashed sweet potatoes, one-half cup of meat drippings, one teaspoon baking powder, one pint of corn meal, one-half teaspoon salt, two eggs; mix in a soft dough, bake in a moderate oven.

Boston Brown Bread.—Two cupfuls of corn meal, one cupful of flour, one cupful of sweet milk, one cupful of sour milk, one-half cupful of molasses, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of soda. Put into three well greased one pound baking powder cans. Put on covers and stand in a kettle of boiling water and boil for two hours. Care should be taken that the water does not boil over tops of covers or boil dry.

An Attractive Dessert.—One pint of cream, white of one egg, sugar to taste, one-half cupful of ground walnuts, twelve figs, six dates. Beat up the cream until stiff with the white of the egg, which adds to the stiffness and bulk. Sweeten the cream to taste, add the ground walnuts, the figs, and the dates cut into small pieces. Mix carefully and put into a wet mold, cover tightly and pack in ice and salt and allow it to remain so for four hours. This quantity will serve eight persons.

Fig Layer Cake.—Cream one cup of sugar and one-third cup butter till light, add three eggs without separating, beating five minutes between adding the first two eggs and ten minutes after adding the last egg; add teaspoon vanilla and one-half cup milk. Sift twice two cups flour with two even teaspoons cracker dust, one-half pound of blanched and chopped almonds, add juice of half a lemon, stir well and bake half an hour; this is a novel cake and delicious.

COCOANUT.

Cocoanut Cream.—This is something that in our family takes the place of cows' cream, and we like it better for all things in which cows' cream is used. One ripe cocoanut, grated or run through food grinder. Place in dish and add hot or warm water, a little more than will be taken up by the cocoanut. Press a bit until the water added looks creamy. It will be thin or rich according to the amount of water added. I then put into potato ricer, and press as dry as possible. It may be found necessary to strain through a thin cloth to remove any sediments or bit of nut. Delicious served with fruit or cereal. This is cheaper, even in the north than cows' cream.—G.K.S.

Cocoanut Fudge.—This, if made properly, should be the consistency of mellow fudge. To three cups of sugar add the cream of one cocoanut. Boil over slow but steady fire until it forms a soft ball in cold water. Then add the dry pressed cocoanut left from the cream. Boil up a little longer and test again in cold water. If it forms a soft ball, take from fire and stir quickly until it thickens. Pour on buttered platter and cut in squares when cold.

Nut Bread.—One-half cup of sugar, one egg, one teaspoonful of salt, one and one-quarter cups of milk, four cups of sifted flour, four level teaspoonfuls baking powder, one cup of chopped nuts. Beat egg, add sugar, then flour, which has been sifted with salt and baking powder alternately with milk, then nuts. Allow to stand in warm place twenty minutes and bake in moderate oven forty minutes.

PICKLES.

Apple Pickles.—An exceedingly delicious sweet pickle may be made from No. 2 apples if prepared by this recipe: Take the apples just before they are ripe, peel and put a clove in the blossom end of each. Place in steamer and steam until they can be pierced by a straw. Put in jars and cover with a boiling syrup made of two cups of sugar to one cup of vinegar and a drop or two of oil of cinnamon. Stick cinnamon may be used, but will not be so clear. Seal.

Cucumber Pickles.—Place fresh picked cucumbers in a stone jar, cover with enough salt to make a good brine, and put a weight on them. Cover with boiling water and let stand for twenty-four hours. Drain in colander, pack in jars with whole mixed spices and a few pieces of horseradish, cover with boiling vinegar, and seal. These will keep all winter and always be crisp. May be sweetened if pre-

Large hats have returned to their own again; the small round hats are not sufficiently becoming to the majority of faces, and in the late summer every one wants as much shade as possible.

WHITE IN MILLINERY.

The pure white hat is having a great vogue in Paris, and indications are that a great deal of white will be used in autumn millinery. This will make white ostrich, white wings, various styles of white aigrettes, white eod, white ribbons and white uncut velvet as trimmings and white felt and white beaver shapes desirable in the coming season.

White is combined with all colors for millinery. It is particularly popular in combination with navy blue. For the moment, in Paris, dark navy blue and white has taken the place to a degree of black and white.

COME AND REST.

Christ the Lord to you is speaking;
Hearken to His gracious call:
Find in Him what you are seeking;
Let Him be your all in all.

In the desert hard and dreary
Vain has often been your quest;
"Come," He says, "to me ye weary,
Come and I will give you rest."

Wait not for a better season;
Wait not for another day:
While He says "come now and reason,"
Let Him wash your sins away.

Trust yourself to Him who saves you;
Take the gift He freely gives:
Break each fetter that enslaves you
By that One who for you lives.

Should the cares of life oppress you,
And its lights grow pale and dim,
He will guide and cheer and bless you;
For all fulness dwells in Him.

Lest the fiery dart should sting you,
He provides a shield divine:
He to realms of bliss will bring you
Where eternal glories shine.

He who knew the lowly manger
And the awful cross of shame
Will in every time of danger
Manifest to you His name.

Conscious of His smile and favor,
Firmly tread the path He trod:
Never in your purpose waver;
Live to do the will of God.

No. 2 is also to be accorded with some modifications. In northern climates it may be advisable for those who are taking much bodily exercise to eat meat twice or even thrice a day, at any rate in youth and early manhood. But in temperate climates the Jap rule is an excellent one even for young people, and as soon as a man or woman reaches 40 the rule should be made more stringent. After 40 meat should only be eaten rarely, say, twice or thrice a week, fish being substituted for it, and after 50 it will probably be found salutary to eschew meat altogether in the vast majority of cases.

DEMOCRATIC AND AMIABLE.

It will hardly be disputed that these Japanese precepts come much nearer the ideal code than the Hebrew Commandments. They are at once more reasonable, more salutary, and more natural, and because they are better suited to human nature they find more sanction in themselves and need less external, or, shall we say, superhuman, sanction?

They are not taken from the mouth of God by a great man and written on tables of stone; they are the slow inductions of many millions of experiences, and are written perdurably in our human flesh. They are democratic and amiable, too; they do not frame themselves as orders coming from above, but as advice and admonition from counsellors well disposed to men who regard human frailties with kindly, tolerant eyes.—Frank Harris in "The English Review."

HOW CLOVES GROW.

Cloves are the unexpanded flower-buds of a beautiful evergreen tree which grows only in tropical countries. The buds are at first a pale color, and gradually become green, after which they develop into a bright red, when they are ready for collecting. During the drying process they are exposed to the smoke of a wood-fire, and then to the action of the sun, which accounts for their dark-brown color when ready for the market. The clove-tree, which attains a height of 30 feet, is a native of a small group of islands in the Indian Archipelago, called the Spice Islands, but in the last few centuries it has been carried to all the warmer parts of the world. Cloves were one of the principal Oriental spices which early excited the cupidity of Western commercial communities, having been the basis of a rich and lucrative trade since the early part of the Christian era.

BOILED DINNER.

It is difficult to have a boiled dinner for two, as one does not care for it the second time, so here is a remedy: One small head of cabbage, two white turnips, three or four potatoes, two one and one-half inch thick pork chops, and two slices of bacon. Cut the cabbage so as to retain its shape and still be able to put inside of it the chops. Next, put the bacon between the two chops and tie together with white twine. After the cabbage has boiled about twenty minutes, add the chops. When a little tender, add the potatoes and turnips. Any left over cabbage is good fried with potatoes. German style.

Fig Layer Cake.—Cream one cup of sugar and one-third cup butter till light, add three eggs without separating, beating five minutes between adding the first two eggs and ten minutes after adding the last egg; add teaspoon vanilla and one-half cup milk. Sift twice two cups flour with two even teaspoons baking powder; add to the batter and beat until light and smooth. Put in two layer cake pans and bake in a quick oven twenty-five minutes. When cool fill with fig paste. Fig Paste.—Chop one pound figs fine, add one cup of boiling water, one-half cup sugar, juice of one-half lemon; simmer gently till it makes a smooth paste. Cool before using.

Eggs Au Gratin.—Divide six hard cooked eggs into halves, lengthwise, and place in a circle around dish. Prepare a sauce as follows: Melt one tablespoonful of butter, add one tablespoonful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne pepper, one-half teacupful of water, same amount of cream, two tablespoonfuls of grated cheese. Boil for two or three minutes, add two raw egg yolks; mix well, and pour at once over the eggs, sprinkle with buttered cracker crumbs, and brown in a quick oven.

Water Lily Salad.—For each individual use hard boiled eggs; when cooked let stand in cold water until cool enough to handle; peel, slice in strips one-quarter inch wide, leaving the yolk to stand in center; set on lettuce leaves and serve with French dressing. This is delicious as well as "artistic."

Almond Cake Filling.—Take one-half pound of blanched almonds, pass through fine tooth chopper, mash until pasty; spread between cake. When this is done spread over almonds with pulverized sugar.

CAKE.

White Cake.—Cream well three-fourths cup of butter, one cup of cake flour (measure after sifting), then add three-fourths cup of whites of eggs, one cup of milk. Add one-fourth teaspoon of cream of tartar to the whites of the eggs. Mix by taking a little flour and a little milk to the butter and eggs and sugar. Use all the flour but one-half cup, to which must be added three teaspoons of baking powder. Flavor and bake in a moderate oven thirty minutes. Caramel filling.—Take two cups of brown sugar, one cup of what sugar, one-half cup of butter, and one cup of cream. Mix these ingredients well and let boil until the mixture pours very slowly and thickly from the spoon, then add one-fourth teaspoon of baking powder, let boil up and then remove from the stove and when it begins to cool flavor with two teaspoons of vanilla.

Unfailing Sponge Cake.—Five large eggs, one level teaspoon cream of tartar, one cup granulated sugar, one scant cup flour and half a teaspoon of vanilla. Sift both sugar and flour four or five times. Beat the whites; when half beaten add the cream of tartar and continue beating until stiff, then carefully fold in, in succession, the sugar, flour, vanilla, and well beaten yolks. Bake in a moderate oven.

Cracker Dust Cake.—Break five eggs and beat together fifteen minutes, add one cup of sugar and the grated rind of one lemon, add one cup of grated chocolate, into which you have put one heaping cup of good brine, and put a weight on them. Cover with boiling water and let stand for twenty-four hours. Drain in colander, pack in jars with whole mixed spices and a few pieces of horseradish, cover with boiling vinegar, and seal. These will keep all winter and always be crisp. May be sweetened if preferred.

Spanish Pickle.—Three large heads of cabbage, one dozen small onions, two dozen green tomatoes, three green peppers. Chop all fine, mix with salt, let stand overnight, drain in the morning. Add two quarts wax beans and six dozen small pickled cucumbers cut in small pieces, one quart celery seed, one ounce tumeric powder, one-half pound ground mustard, one and one-half pounds brown sugar. Add vinegar until it comes up even with top and boil until it begins to settle, then add one tablespoon flour and let boil again. This is a large quantity.

BANK OF MONTREAL ROBBED

Safe Crackers Blow Open Safe at New Westminster, B. C.

A despatch from New Westminster, B.C., says: Two hundred and fifteen thousand dollars was stolen early on Friday from the branch of the bank of Montreal in this city. Five burglars entered the bank by the front door, broke through the metal coating of the vault, blew open the safe by charges of nitroglycerine, and got clear away with their booty without being seen, except by a Chinese caretaker. They probably escaped down the Frazer River in a launch, or else by an automobile toward Vancouver. Actual figures of the losses were obtained in the afternoon from Manager G. D. Brymer, who has been in charge at New Westminster for twenty years. There were $235,000 in the bank, and of this $253,000 was taken. Of the amount taken $150,000 even were in five and ten dollar bills. These were all new, and the bank still has the numbers and asserts that payment on them can be stopped. There was $38,000 in gold, of which $20,000 was taken, and the remainder left. An extra large amount of money was on hand for paying off fishermen and hands from the hop fields.

The first known of the robbery was when the Chinese caretaker appeared at the police station at 5.30 o'clock and gave the alarm. He had managed to work loose from the bonds with which he had been tied after the robbers had departed. Chief of Police Bradshaw hurried to the scene, and all available officers were pressed into service, but the only obtainable clue was that given by the Chinaman. From the thoroughness of the job and the tools with which the work was done the local officers believe the same gang which has been at work in Vancouver did the job here.

EXPLORED JAMES BAY.

T. & N. O. Party of Scientists Return With Reports.

A despatch from Toronto says: The Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway Commission's exploration party, headed by Prof. S. C. Ellis, has completed its work of surveying the Ontario shore of James Bay and the Moose River estuary. Prof. Ellis has returned to his home at Ottawa, and will shortly forward to Chairman Englehart his maps and reports. The expedition studied the currents, took soundings, and measured the silt deposits, with a view to ascertaining the real character of James Bay, and the volume and effect of the rivers flowing into it, so as to discover the possibilities of a deep-sea harbor for the Province. The party examined the country from Cochrane to James Bay as they went down the Matagami and Groundhog Rivers to the Moose River, studying the agricultural possibilities and the iron deposits of that region.

THRASHING AT BRANDON.

Good Yields Reported—Wheat Grades High.

A despatch from Brandon, Man., says: Thrashing is well under way. Some excellent crop reports are coming in. Mr. John Clark, one of the big farmers in the Roseland district, finished thrashing on Tuesday night. From 119 acres in one field he has 3,317 bushels of fine No. 1 Northern, twenty-eight bushels to the acre. The balance of his crop is quite up to this splendid showing, and Mr. Clark says his yield is no better than others in his locality. Reports from other districts are also very favorable.

Brigadier-General Lessard is understood to be slated for General Otter's post, while to succeed

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

HOW SPECULATION ON MARGIN DIFFERS FROM INVESTMENT.

Loss Not Limited to Amount of Original Outlay—Dividing Line Between Investment and Speculation Not Clearly Defined—How One Speculates on Margin and What "Margin" Means.

(By "Investor")

In the first of this series it was shown that "distribution of risk" is an important principle of investment. It is a very simple one, however, involving no very confused ideas. There is another principle to be borne in mind when making investments which is of no less importance, but it is, however, considerably less obvious to those whose investment experience is small—and even to many who should understand its actions thoroughly. This is the principle of investment "in accordance with actual requirements."

The dividing line between speculation and investment is not always clear, and in discussing investing it is not unprofitable to digress somewhat to go into the field where "safety of principal" is held in small esteem in comparison with "prospect of appreciating in value"; and "rate of income" is a decidedly secondary consideration.

Of course in general it is understood that one who buys mining stocks "speculates," and one who buys bonds "invests." But where one man buys high-class stocks outright as a speculation it is hard to separate him from the investor, and for practical purposes he is such.

Speculation takes many forms. In general, however, it is done on "margin," unless mining shares are bought. The latter are subject to such violent changes in prices in the market that no broker who has any reputation worth considering will buy them except for clients who are prepared to pay for them outright.

When one buys a stock on "margin" it is customary to go to a broker who takes the order and makes the purchase for a small commission of a quarter of one per cent. on the par value. The broker, being a responsible person, as his possession of a seat on the Toronto or Montreal Stock Exchanges, costing as they do some $20,000, would indicate, the client, as soon as he is notified that his stock has been bought pays the broker fifteen or twenty per cent. of the market value of the stock. This 20 per cent. is the "margin." Sometimes it is allowed as low as 10 per cent, but "narrow margins are most dangerous. The broker takes the stock purchased to his bank—let us say it is Toronto Street Railway of which he bought 100 shares—and there makes a loan on it. The stock cost $15,800, as the market in "Toronto Rails" at this writing stands at 158. The bank will loan 80 per cent. of this amount, or $12,640. The client's margin—amounted to $3,160, so that the broker is not out of pocket. The broker has received 25 commission for buying the stock, finding a bank to loan money thereon and being responsible for the loan's repayment when demanded, for banks loan on securities "on call" only. This means that the loan must be repaid at once when asked for. As the loan is not very stable, being used for keeping active surplus bank funds not required for the moment, and may be called at any time, the bank generally charges a lower rate than that charged on general discounts. So the broker pays, at the present time, 5-1/2 per cent. and charges the client 6 per cent., the difference being considered a fair charge for looking after the loan, paying the interest and handling the client's account.

Now, supposing that while waiting for an advance in price the client has to

THE SAFETY OF A BOND INVESTMENT

Q Bonds are the most attractive investment because of the security they afford the investor, principal and interest being a first charge, on all the assets of the Corporation issuing them.

Q Because of general prosperity, development and expansion of the business of Corporations or concerns—financial and industrial—the material assets naturally increase, and so year by year the security to the bond investor becomes greater and the safety of bond investments more certain.

Q Bonds yield a very liberal rate of interest when one takes into consideration the high degree of security they offer.

SOME CANADIANS ESCAPED.

Several Have Arrived Safely From Chengtu.

A despatch from Chungking, says:—The revolution is fast gaining ground. It is believed that no food has entered Chengtu for many days, where the missionaries are confined, and probably already the besieged are on short rations. Heavy firing is reported from that quarter between the loyal garrison and the rebels among whom there are probably many soldiers. Among the missionaries who have arrived here in safety are the Canadians stationed at Luchow, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. P. Jelfie, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ferguson, and E. R. Brecken. Luchow is about 150 miles to the south-east of Chengtu.

The Situation is Grave.

A despatch from Peking, says:—Unpublished edicts order a large force of Wuchang troops to leave immediately by the quickest route for Szechuan and Tuanfang. The relief force, however, will take four weeks at least to reach Chengtu, and the full gravity of the situation in the capital of Szechuan Province is now realized.

A despatch from Syracuse, N. Six of the nine people were killed outright and two others were so badly injured that they died on the way to the hospital. The list

MINERAL OUTPUT.

Ontario Leads in Production in Canada With 40 Per Cent.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The total value of the mineral production of Canada during the past year exceeded $105,000,000, an increase of $13,299,517 over that of the preceding year, an increase of 14 per cent., according to a preliminary report by the Department of Mines. There has been an increased production in nearly every province, the only decline being shown by New Brunswick. Ontario leads with 40 per cent. of the total for Canada. In silver production alone there was an increase of 16 per cent., chiefly credited to the Cobalt and adjacent districts. Ontario's silver output amounted to $15,711,513.

RUSSIA'S PREMIER SHOT

Stolypin Was Seriously Wounded at a Theatre Performance.

A despatch from Kiev, Russia, says:—Premier Stolypin was attacked and seriously wounded during a theatre performance here on Thursday night. His assailant was arrested. There was a gala performance at the opera in the presence of the Emperor of all the Russians. Two revolver shots in rapid succession electrified the audience, and Premier Stolypin sank to the floor. Those who were near by saw that he was gravely hurt. There was tremendous excitement in the theatre, and in the excitement it is impossible to obtain the least details at assassination. It is reported that Stolypin's wounds are mortal. The Czar left St. Petersburg a few days ago, accompanied by Premier Stolypin, to review the

A despatch from Quebec says: Dr. Dube, a young physician from L'Islet County, is dead at the Hotel Dieu Hospital as a result of having been blown up in a dynamite explosion at his home on Tuesday. There were several sticks of dynamite in a barrel at the rear of his home and a servant girl emptied some hot ashes on them, not knowing what they were. Dr. Dube happened by when the explosion occurred. He was horribly mutilated.

MOUNT ETNA BELCHING LAVA

The Eruption is Proving Disastrous to Those Living in Neighborhood.

A despatch from Catania, Sicily, says: The eruption of Mount Etna is assuming the proportions of a real disaster. The lava stream whose path crosses the railway line circling the volcano and which extends eight miles from its source, is approaching the railway stations to the north and especially threatening the depots of Moio and Alcantara, which were abandoned on Wednesday. Squads of laborers were at work taking up the railroad tracks and removing all transportable material to places of safety with the idea of minimizing the losses. The entire crest of Mount Etna appears to be in a state of ebullition. An exact count of the number of fissures is impossible, because of the smoke which shrouds the whole mountain, but there seemed to be more than seventy new fissures all belching smoke and lava. The eruption means great suffering for the peasantry. The slopes of Etna, with an area of more than 400 square miles, support a population more dense than that of any other portion of Sicily or Italy. There are sixty-five cities and villages in the entire area.

charged on general discounts. So the broker pays, at the present time, 5-12 per cent. and charges the client 6 per cent., the difference being considered a fair charge for looking after the loan, paying the interest and handling the client's account.

Now, supposing that while waiting for an advance in price the client has to hold his stock for a year. The interest will amount to $758.40, of which the broker gets $63.20 for handling the loan during that time. And generally in the course of a year the broker amply earns his money; for the loan may require shifting a dozen times, when as many banks want it repaid. And sometimes loans are hard to make. The client receives, however, dividends on his purchase at the rate of 8 per cent. on the par value—in the case of Toronto Railway—and so at the end of the year he has received $41.60 more than the interest charges. Suppose at the end of the year the stock has advanced to 163 and the client sells. The broker gets $16,300 for the stock and the client's account would look somewhat as follows:

	Debit	Credit
100 Tor. Rails @ 158	$15,800
Brokerage	25
Margins		$ 3,160
Interest	758 40
Dividends		800
100 Tor. Rails sold		16,300
Brokerage	25
Cheque for balance		3,652 60
	$20,260 00	$20,260

So that the client receives back his margins and about $500 of profit.

Of course, in this example, the client was quite fortunate. He had only put up about 31 points on the market price of the stock which, however, might have declined that amount. But before it had gone down very far the broker would have written a polite but firm note asking for further margins, and the lower the price went the greater the amount of margin required. Finally, perhaps, the client would sell out at a substantial loss, as he could not raise further margins. For, remember this, in speculating on margin, the margin does not limit the risk. Legally you own the stock and the broker only loans you the money to pay for it, and keeps the stock as security. The fact that he in turn borrows from the banks does not alter this fact. And so, if your stock should drop down to nothing in value you would have to stand the loss and the broker could force you to make good the amount through the law courts. You could, of course, limit your losses to a certain point, but that is seldom done, and is not often satisfactory.

Of course, had you been an investor and bought the stock to hold you would not have been worried by a drop in market price; for while the speculator sacrificed safety to prospect of appreciation, the investor would not have overlooked such an important feature.

FOUR WERE DROWNED.

Young Men Upset From Boat on River at Montreal.

A despatch from Montreal says: Four young men, said to have been under the influence of liquor, lost their lives on Sunday afternoon, when the rowboat in which they were crossing the river upset below the Victoria Bridge in the swiftest part of the St. Mary's current. The men were: Henri Lafrancois, aged 25; Felix Livernois, aged 31; Joseph Lamarre, aged 19; Joseph Gagnon, aged 17. It is thought that the four men were rowing out to one of the small islands to make a day of it.

The list of dead may be increased as it is believed that several of those who are numbered among the injured are so badly hurt that they cannot live.

A HIT.

What She Gained by Trying Again.

A failure at first makes us esteem final success.

A family in Minnesota that now enjoys Postum would never have known how good it is if the mother had been discouraged by the failure of her first attempt to prepare it. Her son tells the story:

"We had never used Postum till last spring when father brought home a package one evening just to try it. We had heard from our neighbors, and in fact every one who used it, how well they liked it.

"Well, the next morning Mother brewed it about five minutes, just as she had been in the habit of doing with coffee without paying special attention to the directions printed on the package. It looked weak and didn't have a very promising color, but nevertheless father raised his cup with an air of expectancy. It certainly did give him a great surprise, but I'm afraid it wasn't a very pleasant one, for he put down his cup with a look of disgust.

"Mother wasn't discouraged though, and next morning gave it another trial, letting it stand on the stove till boiling began and then letting it boil for fifteen or twenty minutes, and this time we were all so pleased with it that we have used it ever since.

"Father was a confirmed dyspeptic and a cup of coffee was to him like poison. So he never drinks it any more, but drinks Postum regularly. He isn't troubled with dyspepsia now and is actually growing fat, and I'm sure Postum is the cause of it. All the children are allowed to drink it and they are perfect pictures of health."

GILLETT'S PERFUMED LYE

CAUTION.

Put a strong glass on the label and examine it closely every time. Always look for the name "Gillett's."

Like all good articles, which are extensively advertised, Gillett's Lye is frequently and very closely imitated. In some instances the imitators have actually copied directions and other printed matter from our label word for word. Be wise, and refuse to purchase imitation articles for they are never satisfactory.

Insist On Getting Gillett's Lye

and decline to accept anything that looks to be an imitation or that is represented to be "just as good" or "better," or "the same thing." In our experience of over fifty years in business we have never known of an imitation article that has been a success, for imitators are not reliable people. At the best the "just as good" kinds are only trashy imitations, so decline them with thanks every time.

MARRIAGE ON FAIR GROUNDS.

Took Place in Presence of Select Few at Ottawa.

A despatch from Ottawa, says:—A novel event not on the program at the Ottawa Exhibition took place there on Thursday, the wedding of two young people seated on bronchos in a Wild West show. In a glorious flood of sunshine and in the presence of a small company of friends, Miss Caryl Fenton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Fenton, of Louisville, Ky., was married to Len Francis Driver, a cowboy, whose home is in Midland, Texas. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Geo. Edwards of Western Methodist Church, Ottawa. The bride was assisted by Miss Reta Palmer of Henrietta, Texas, who was attired in the real costume of the plains, while the groom was supported by Mr. J. M. Walter Gibson, Globe, Arizona. From childhood bride and groom have practically lived in the saddle, hence the desire for a horseback wedding.

CHENG TU HAS FAILED.

Reports From City Where Missionaries Took Shelter.

A despatch from Shanghai says: It is reported that the rebels have captured Chengtu, that high officials have been slain, and that the Viceroy with his family barely managed to escape and flee. There is an unconfirmed report here that two American missionaries have been killed in the Province of Sze-Chuan. The situation at Chentu at the latest reports, was still unchanged. The rebels were besieging the gates, which were guarded by loyal troops. When Chengtu became untenable for foreigners they were ordered to proceed to Chun-Kiang. The British Consul at the latter place has now ordered all foreigners arriving there to continue on to Shanghai.

FRENCH FOOD RIOTS SERIOUS

Dragoons Charged the Mob Armed With Pitchforks at Charleville.

A despatch from Paris says: The war against the high price of food, which has been languishing for the last few days, owing either to the vigorous precautions of the authorities or the palliative measures of the Mayors in establishing municipal butcher shops and other food depots, burst forth afresh on Wednesday. In several districts there were violent disorders, which indicated that professional agitators were again at work. At Creil, thirty-two miles north of Paris, barricades were formed with telegraph poles. One of exceptional strength was built around a huge boiler surmounted by a red flag, and it required a large force of troops to storm it successfully. In the engagements large numbers on both sides were injured. The streets of Creil are patrolled by soldiers. Charleville also was the scene of serious disturbances on Wednesday. Crowds of people from the country around, armed with pitchforks, attempted a regular investment of the town. A regiment of dragoons, hastily summoned, charged down upon the manifestants, scattering them in all directions. At L'Orient the mobs, not satisfied with proclaiming a boycott against the market, upset the stalls and threw into the streets the various articles of food exposed for sale.

PRINCE ARTHUR ENGAGED?

Reports That Connaught's Son Will Wed Niece of the Czar.

A despatch from London says: An interesting report current is that Prince Arthur of Connaught, son of the Duke of Connaught, the newly commissioned Governor-General of Canada, is engaged to marry Princess Irene, daughter of the Grand Duchess Xenia-Alexandrovna, who is a sister of Emperor Nicholas of Russia. It is stated that the formal announcement of the betrothal will be made before the Connaughts sail for Canada.

THE VIENNA FOOD RIOTS.

Stringent Measures Taken to Prevent Their Recurrence.

A despatch from Vienna says: Stringent measures have been taken to prevent a recurrence of the riots which started here on Sunday during a demonstration by the Social Democrats against the high cost of living. If there should be any renewal of the disturbances, martial law will be proclaimed. It is now believed that there was only one fatality during the day's disturbances of Sunday. The police have made 170 arrests.

FIRE ON MOB.

Many People Killed by Spanish Troops on Portuguese Border.

A despatch from Badajoz, Spain, says: Many persons were killed or wounded in a battle here between the troops quartered in this section and a mob. A large force of troops is quartered here on the Portuguese border to prevent Royalists from entering that country. The mob made an attack on the troops and the soldiers fired, heavy fighting following. The outbreak is attributed to the prevailing political unrest in the district.

THREE YEARS FOR THEFT.

Adelard Duval Sentenced at Mont- real for Robbery.

A despatch from Montreal says:
Adelard Duval was sentenced to three years in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary on Friday by Magistrate Lanctot. The accused had pleaded guilty to stealing $200 from the Laing Packing & Provision Company, but the evidence showed that he had stolen $1,400 in eighteen months, and after his arrest he returned to the officials of the company the sum of $1,200, but refused to make any statement regarding the balance. The accused has been the manager of a store and he falsified the books from which he managed to steal the money.

HORRORS OF CHOLERA.

Turkish Soldiers Penned in Locked Cars Without Medical Aid.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: A despatch to the Novoe Vremya from Constantinople describing the horrors of the cholera epidemic in Macedonia says that soldiers are crowded in locked cars when ill and left without water or medical aid. On the Mitrovitza Uskup railroad living and dead victims of the cholera have been thrown from car windows by their comrades.

CHINA'S NAVAL PROGRAMME.

Will Have Eight Battleships With- in Next Seven Years.

A Pekin despatch says: The Ministry of Marine has drawn up its programme, which will give China at the end of seven years a fleet of eight battleships, twenty cruisers, ten smaller vessels, and fifty torpedo boats and destroyers. It also provides for four naval arsenals.

KILLED AT THE 800.

James Currie of Toronto Fell Fifty Feet From Bridge.

A despatch from Sault Ste.
Marie, Ont., says: James Currie, aged 25, an employee of the Canadian Bridge Company, who hails from Toronto, was instantly killed on Friday by falling fifty feet from the bridge which is in course of construction over the Montreal River.

WILL RUSH THE WORK.

Central Canada Railway to Build From Montreal to Ottawa.

A despatch from Ottawa says:
According to a director of the Central Railway Company of Canada, the Railway Company, which is said to own over a million acres of land in the Ottawa Valley, and contemplates connecting Montreal and the Georgian Bay by a new line, work will be started on the Montreal-Ottawa section of their road this week, and forty miles of a track will have been graded before the snow falls. The work will commence at Hawkesbury and will go in two directions. Track-laying will not start until Spring, when the work will be pushed vigorously.

TO STRENGTHEN GARRISON.

British War Office to Send Thou- sand Men to Jamaica.

A despatch from Kingston, Jamaica, says: It is reported here that the British War Office is arranging to send very soon 1,000 artillery and infantry to strengthen the local garrison in view of the increased importance of the station which will come with the opening of the Panama Canal. It is expected that the naval yard at Port Royal, which was burned last spring, will be reopened soon.

martial law will be proclaimed. It is now believed that there was only one fatality during the day's disturbances of Sunday. The police have made 170 arrests.

Ohio Convict Must Serve a Year and Work Out $300 Fine.

A despatch from Cincinnati says:
Virgil Benner was received at the city workhouse on Sunday from Scioto County to serve a sentence of one year and work out a fine of $300. Benner was convicted of selling his vote. He will have to serve 500 days to make up the sentence and fine. He was put to work in the brush factory. Benner is the first prisoner ever received at the workhouse charged with vote selling.

PRIESTS ARE BEGGARS.

Perhaps it would interest the people at home to know how Buddhist priests of Burmah get their daily bread. Every morning after sunrise they go out in batches in Indian file, preceded by a native boy with a bell, which he rings at intervals.
This warns the people of their approach, and it is wonderful to see with what reverence the people regard these priests. Immediately the bell rings a Burmese woman run out with her offering of rice, bananas, eggs, or the best that her house can provide. No words of greeting are exchanged. The offerings are made and received in silence. The Buddhist priests may not receive money. This is why they have to beg for their daily bread.

SCHOOLBOYS GO ON STRIKE

Pupils at Various Centres in Britain Adopt Tactics of Their Elders.

A despatch from London says: Letting just like their elders. They Young England appears to be in a state of unrest, following the example set in the recent strikes by the laboring classes. There have been strikes of schoolboys at London, Liverpool, Manchester, Hull, Sheffield, Grimsby, Llanelli, Bradford, Ashton-Under-Lyne, and even in Scotland at Leith. The boys drew up manifestoes, held demonstrations, and engaged in picketing just like their elders. They object to the use of the cane by schoolmasters, and also want an extra half-holiday on Wednesday afternoon. At Islington the boys smashed the school-windows with stones, and in Hull there was promiscuous stone-throwing with much damage to windows in the neighborhood. In most places the strikes collapsed and canings have been in order.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within one mile of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, wholly owned and occupied by him or his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section along side his homestead. Price, $100 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry including the time required to earn homestead patent, and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $300 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $500.00.

The Grave —Mrs. Taylor

This is a strong statement to make, but it is exactly what Mrs. Thomas Taylor, of Blum, Texas, said in expressing her opinion of this remedy.

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve raised me from the grave and I have much confidence in it. I can never say enough for your grand medicines. If anyone had offered me $100.00 for the second bottle of Nerve that I used I would have said 'no indeed.'"

MRS. THOMAS TAYLOR,
Blum, Tex.

Nervous exhaustion is a common occurrence of modern life. The wear and tear on the nervous system is greater now than at any time since the world began. For sleeplessness, poor appetite and that "run down" feeling, nothing is so good as

Dr. Miles' Nerve

Your nerves are your life and lack of vital energy makes existence a misery. Dr. Miles' Nerve will tone up your nervous system.

Ask any druggist. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your money is returned.

LIGHT REFLECTION.

The Reason Why Foam Always Appears White in Color.

When water or liquid of any color is violently agitated small bubbles of air are mixed up with it, and thus foam is formed, and its whiteness is due to the fact that when light passes from one medium to another of a different refractive index it is always reflected, and this reflection may be so often repeated as to render the mixture impervious to light.

It is, then, this frequency of the reflections of the limiting surfaces of air and water that renders foam opaque, and as each particle reflects light in all directions so much light is reflected that the mixture appears white.

To a similar cause is due the whiteness of transparent bodies when crushed to powder. The separate particles transmit light freely, but the reflections at their surfaces are so numerous that the resulting effect is white. Thus glass when crushed is a white powder and is opaque, but when it is put under water it once more becomes transparent, because the water fills up the interstices between the particles and the reflections are destroyed. Salt and snow are also common examples of this condition.

For Constipation.

A Medicine that Does not Cost Anything Unless it Cures.

The active medicinal ingredients of Rexall Orderlies, which is odorless, tasteless and colorless, is an entirely new discovery. Combined with other extremely valuable ingredients, it forms a perfect bowel regulator, intestinal invigorator and strengthener. Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy and are notable for their agreeableness to the palate and gentleness of action. They do not cause griping or any disagreeable effect or inconvenience.

Unlike other preparations for a like purpose, they do not create a habit, but instead they overcome the cause of habit acquired through the use of ordinary laxatives, cathartics and harsh physic, and permanently remove the cause of constipation or irregular bowel action.

We will refund your money without argument if they do not do as we say they will. Two sizes, 25c. and 10c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. T. B. Wallace.

NAPOLEON LOVED SNUFF.

And He Pinched the Boxes as Well as the Pungent Dust.

Napoleon loved snuff; not only on the battlefield, but at home in the council, he had recourse to the dust, especially when his schemes were unfavorably received and he wished to hide his uneasiness or impatience. Unable to sit still in his elbow chair, he would try in a thousand ways to divert attention from himself, and among other devices, as soon as he saw a member's eye fixed on him would hold out his arm and shake his thumb and forefinger, to signify that he wished for a pinch of snuff. Not less than four, and even six, snuffboxes disappeared in this manner during a single sitting, and it was not till he had left the council chamber that he became aware of the larceny. So confirmed was this habit that some of the councilors, whose snuffboxes were heirlooms or presents from foreign princes, hit upon the expedient of carrying cheap papier mache or wooden boxes for the emperor to pocket. The snuffboxes, however, always returned to their owners and in doing so were often found to have undergone a very pleasant metamorphosis. By some necromancy a wooden or tortoise shell box, on coming out from the imperial pocket, was usually transformed into one of gold, set around with diamonds, or bearing the emperor's miniature on the lid.—William Matthews, "Hours With Men and Books."

Earning a Spanking.
Mrs. Brown—I was downtown yesterday. I didn't know but I might meet you. Mrs. Greene—I was downtown, too, and I'm awfully sorry I didn't see you. Little Johnny Greene—Ma, don't you remember we saw Mrs. Brown's dog and you said: "Come, let's hurry away from here. That old cat must be somewhere near." What old cat did you mean, ma?

Peculiar.
"I do not understand it," said the philosopher.
"What is bothering you now?" inquired the other.
"If a man is two hours late arriving home his wife raises a row, while if he is gone two years she will give him a royal welcome. Women are peculiar."—Pearson's Weekly.

Very Particular.
"Mayme is a crank on having things harmonize. Isn't she?"
"Yes, to such an extent that she won't use rats because she has mouse colored hair."—Baltimore American.

Glory, ambition, armies, fleets, thrones, crowns—playthings of grown children—Victor Hugo.

Why She Couldn't.
The elder Booth, the tragedian, had a broken nose. A woman friend once remarked to him, "I like your acting very much, Mr. Booth, but to be perfectly frank with you I can't get over your nose!"
"No wonder, madam," replied Booth; "the bridge is gone."

A Comparison.
"A horse is man's truest friend," said the lover of animals.
"He's more like a relation than a friend," replied Farmer Cornstossel.
"He makes me think of my boy Josh; allus ready to eat an' liable to kick if you put him to work."—Washington Star.

True Love.
"Sue says she would let her husband go hungry before she would cook a meal for him."
"That is what I call true love."—Houston Post.

Examine what is said, not him who speaks.—Arabian Proverb.

For a man there is only one really safe pocket, and that is a pocket which few men except experienced race goers have their suits supplied with. It is a breast pocket inside the waistcoat, and it should have a buttoned flap, for without the button even this hiding place is unsafe.

The second best place for carrying money is the trousers pocket, especially if the owner is rather stout. And the left hand pocket is better than the right. A skillful thief standing behind you may insinuate his right hand into your right hand pocket easily, but the left comes awkwardly to him.

For safety's sake the pickpocket seldom works single handed. He usually works with a couple of "screens," who plant themselves in front of the intended victim. If the "job" is a difficult one they carefully jostle him at the critical moment in order to distract his attention. This jostling is usually called "working the ramp."

A favorite trick in a dense crowd is to tip a man's hat over, as though accidentally. His hands naturally fly up to set it right. Instead they should go straight to the watch and the money pocket. If your hat is knocked off in a crowd make sure your money pocket is safe before troubling about the hat. If you are quick enough you may catch a hand there.

The trained pickpocket's fingers are almost as delicate and sensitive as those of a skilled pianist. To become an expert demands long practice. But the expert could with or without the shelter of a newspaper go through, one by one, every one of a man's twelve or sixteen pockets except that one inside the waistcoat if he knew it to be worth his while. Three years ago a man was sentenced for training young pickpockets. He used clothes dummies with bells so arranged that they rang when the picking was clumsily done.—Exchange

Burglarious Crabs.

Sand crabs in the West Indies during the summer live in holes on the seashore just above high tide mark, retiring into them during the day and coming out at night. They have a singular habit in their nocturnal excursions of entering houses, the doors of which in warm weather are usually left open, and taking possession of small articles of clothing, such as collars, neckties and stockings, which they effectually conceal in their holes on the beach.

Used in Canada for over half a century—used in every corner of the world where people suffer from Constipation and its resulting troubles—

NOISY BUTTERFLIES.

One Species Produces a Sound Like the Snap of a Whip.

One does not think of butterflies as making any sounds, nor of caterpillars as noisy creatures, yet according to the late Samuel Hubbard Scudder in "Frail Children of the Air," the careful student will find some use for his ears when observing the habits of both. Says the author:

It is a fact that certain butterflies produce sound during certain movements. The "whip" butterfly, when surprised makes a noise like the snap of a lash by opening and shutting its wings in quick succession. Some hibernating butterflies when disturbed make a faint hissing sound by slowly depressing and raising their wings. The noise thus produced resembles that made by blowing slowly through closed teeth. Other sounds resemble the friction of sandpaper.

A large number of caterpillars make sound by striking the head against the leaf on which they are resting or by swinging the head from side to side catching the mandibles in the roughness of the leaf or on the silken threads spun on it. It is said that a certain kind of chrysalis when disturbed emits a slight, sharp chirp or clicking noise.

EARLY DAYS OF COACHES.

When Complaint Was Made That "the World Runs on Wheels."

John Taylor, an English poet, known as the "water poet," who died in 1654, had this to say about the use of coaches:

The superfluous use of coaches hath been the occasion of many vile and odious crimes, as murder, theft, cheating, hangings, whippings, pillories, stocks and cages, for house-keeping never decayed till coaches came into England, till which time those were accounted the best men who had the most followers and retainers. Then land about or near London was thought dear enough at a noble the acre yearly, and a ten pound house rent now was scarce 20 shillings then. But the witchcraft of the coach quickly mounted the price of all things except poor men's labor and withal transformed in some places 10, 20, 30, 40, 50, 60 or 100 proper serving men into two or three animals—vile-lie, a butterfly page, a trotting footman, a stiff drinking coachman, a Cook, a Clerk, a Steward and a Butler, which hath enforced many a discarded tall fellow (through want of means to live and grace to guide him in his poverty) to fall into such mischievous actions before named, for which I think the gallowes in England have devoured as many lusty valiant men within these thirty or forty years as would have been a sufficient army to beat the foes of Christ out of Christendome and, marching to Constantinople, have plucked the great Turk by the beard; but, as is aforesaid, this is the age when wherein the "world runs on wheels."

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Canifton, Ont.—"I had been a great sufferer for five years. One doctor told me it was ulcers of the uterus, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor. No one knows what I suffered. I would always be worse at certain periods, and never was regular, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. I was very ill in bed, and the doctor told me I would have to have an operation, and that I might die during the operation. I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Through personal experience I have found it the best medicine in the world for female troubles, for it has cured me, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me while passing through Change of Life."—Mrs. LETITIA BLAIR, Canifton, Ontario.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to suffering women.

A CITY IN THE SEA.

Ruins of an Ancient Town on the Bed of the Adriatic.

Near Rovigo, on the peninsula of Istria, in the Adriatic sea, the ruins of a large town are said to exist at the bottom of the sea. It had been observed for some years that fishermen's nets were sometimes entangled in what appeared to be masses of masonry, of which fragments were brought up from the sea bed, says the Pall Mall Gazette. A diver declared that he had seen walls and streets below the water.

The city authorities decided to investigate. They sent down a diver, who, at the depth of 851 feet, found himself surrounded on the bottom of the sea by the ruined walls, undoubtedly the work of man. Continuing his explorations, he traced the line of walls and was able to distinguish how the streets were laid out. He did not see any doors or window openings, for they were hidden by masses of seaweed and incrustations. He traced the masonry for a distance of 100 feet, where he had to stop, as his diving cord did not permit him to go farther.

Some people think that they identify this lost town with the island mentioned by Pliny the elder under the name of Cissa, near Istria. This island cannot be found now, and it is thought the submerged town may have been a settlement on the island that so mysteriously disappeared.

ALCOHOL AND MEMORY.

Influence of Intoxicating Liquor Upon One's Mentality.

Every person who drinks alcohol to excess, says Dr. Alexander Lambert in Success Magazine, will not show every form of mental deterioration that may be produced by excessive indulgence, and the degree of deterioration in intelligence which goes to make up the sum total of mentality varies greatly in different individuals.

All who drink alcohol to excess, however, show some diminution in their judgment. Judgment means the power of recalling various memories of perceptions through the senses, which have come in from the outside world, memories of ideas, memories of emotions and all the complicated association of ideas that these bring up, and in the recalling of them weigh each one with the other and judge of the value between them. This also means reasoning and decision for action. This power of reasoning and judging is weakened in the alcoholic, and in any brain long poisoned by alcohol it is an impossibility to exercise it. Memory itself is also weakened. There is excessive forgetfulness of the recent past, and in some cases of advanced alcoholism there is absolute forgetfulness of wide gaps of years; a man may be unable to remember anything from the last five minutes back for twenty years and then remember back to childhood.

The memories of childhood are more easily stamped on the brain than are those of adult life, both because it takes less to impress a child and because there is not the complexity of ideas crowding into the brain, nor the complexity of association of ideas to be recorded. Therefore memories of childhood make a deeper impress and last longer, and so the complex memories of the adult are the first to be forgotten in the alcoholic, and those of childhood remain.

EARLY DAY CORONERS.

Their Inquests Covered a Wide Variety of Subjects.

It has been supposed and legal historians have told us that the office of coroner was originally instituted by King Alfred with that of the sheriff, both being designed to aid in keeping the peace when the earls gave up the wardships of the county. The legal historians are wrong, according to Dr. F. J. Waldo of the British Medical-Legal society, who has traced the history of the coroner and his ancient office as far back as the year 1194.

In early days the coroner had a wider and more general jurisdiction than he now enjoys. Coroners were wont to "hold their views" not only upon deaths where an investigation was considered necessary, but also upon various serious crimes which were treated as occasions for the raising of revenue for the crown. The mission of the coroner to the state was not alone to investigate crimes and bring felons to justice. He superintended the forfeiture of money and personal property by criminals to the crown, for the recording of which he was responsible. These forfeitures were not confined in cases of violence and death to the property of the person who could be held directly responsible, but included animals and instruments to which loss of human life under any circumstances might be traceable.—New York World.

ROYAL ETIQUETTE.

In England It Assumes a Number of Curious Phases.

THINGS THE KING CANNOT DO

He is Barred From Accepting Gifts From Individuals, He Must Not Belong to a Club and May Not Marry Without Parliament's Consent.

It may sound a little curious, but there are quite a number of things which, despite his exalted position as sovereign of the realm, King George V. cannot do. These disabilities range over all sorts of matters and concern etiquette, politics, religion and law. To begin with etiquette, it is an established practice that his majesty must never call upon or grant an audience to a foreign monarch except in the presence of a responsible minister. Etiquette also precludes him from accepting a gift which a loyal subject may wish to make him. Should, however, the gift be a joint offering the prohibition does not apply. This enables King George to accept gifts which are subscribed for by a number of people together.

A king never writes a letter to anybody outside his family circle. All other correspondence has to be conducted through one of his secretaries. Nor does King George accept invitations to dine or stop with a subject. What he does when he wishes to pay such a visit is to invite himself. Another strictly observed point of etiquette is that on ascending the throne a king shall withdraw from any clubs to which he has hitherto belonged. Similarly he cannot become a Free Mason, and if he happens to be one at the date of his ascension he must resign from the craft. King George, however, has not been initiated.

Even in affairs of the heart a sovereign must bow to the will of others. Although King Cophetua might have loved and shared his throne with a beggar maid, the royal marriage act would render the occurrence of any such romantic union impossible in England. Members of the blood royal must have the sanction of parliament before they can marry, and this would certainly not be accorded unless the birth and position of the lady were beyond reproach.

An English king's position toward the law is somewhat peculiar. Theoretically he is above the law. In practice, however, he has to obey it, just as have his subjects. He must observe the established legal system of the country. Any royal proclamation which he issues is only binding in so far as it is founded upon an existing law. It cannot alter the common law or create a new offense, nor can a king set up private tribunals, such as the star chamber, or add to the jurisdiction of a court. By a special act of parliament it has also been decided that if his majesty were to lose an action brought against him by the revenue authorities he would be liable for the payment of costs.

By the law of the land the king cannot possibly commit an offense. Any injury or wrong suffered by a subject at his hands has to be attributed to the "mistake of his advisers," hence it happens that King George is the only person in Great Britain who cannot arrest a suspected felon, even if such a one were to be seen by him entering Buckingham palace or Windsor castle. The reason for this is because

A DISCOVERY THAT IS BENEFITING THE WHOLE WORLD

CANADIAN PHYSICIAN MADE IT

Wonderful New Substance Formed By Combining Fruit Juices

It takes Canada to do the really big things that are being done. For thousands of years, people have known that fruit was good for them without knowing exactly why. A Canadian physician experimented until he found out.

Fruit juice is about nine-tenths water and one-tenth solid matter. And this solid matter is eight-ninths sweet and one-ninth bitter. It is the bitter principle that is the curative part of fruit. To get the full benefit of fruit, one must eat great quantities of fresh fruit. By the discovery of this Canadian physician, the bitter or curing part of fruit juice is so combined that it is made to grow or increase many times. In other words, a stronger fruit juice is created. This is made into tablets which are known all over Canada under the name of "Fruit-a-tives". "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world that cures Constipation. JAMES PROUDFOOT Esq. of Vankleek Hill, Ont., says "If it were not for 'Fruit-a-tives' I am satisfied I could not live'."

Chronic Constipation means Paralysis of the Bowels. There are two layers of muscles in the bowels which during constipation become thin and weak and cannot act. In severe cases, people go three and even ten days without the bowels moving. N. JOUBERT Esq. of Grande Ligne, Que. says "I heartily recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' to all who suffer with Constipation'."

MR. JOUBERT

Bile, a liquid secreted by the liver, is the purgative of the body. Two pints of bile should be poured into the bowels every day. In severe constipation only about half a pint is secreted. With the muscles of the bowels weak and little bile, it is impossible for the bowels to move regularly. A. G. WILLISTON Esq. of Hardwick, N. B. says "I tried 'Fruit-a-tives' and now I am well from Chronic Constipation from which I suffered for many years'."

To cure Constipation, the liver must be stimulated to pour out more bile and the weak muscles strengthened. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fox of Newburgh, Ont., say "Our daughter was cured of Appendicitis by 'Fruit-a-tives' after doctors said only an operation could

A Hospital Nurse's Hands.
As an example of trademarks have you ever noticed the hands of the hospital nurse? The soft white hand which in fiction is occupied in cooling fevered brows does not exist and could not. It is a skilled hand, but its work makes it rough and chapped. Try bathing your hands in disinfectant twenty times a day and you will find that, look after them as you may, they will soon be seamed with cracks, which an east wind often turns to bleeding cuts. And as they are worked hard for some twelve or thirteen hours a day the nurse takes a somewhat larger size in gloves than most women. If you ever see the photograph of a hospital nurse you may observe that she prefers to keep those hands behind her back.—London Chron

Jackal Broth.
There are parts of Morocco, we are told by a French visitor, where jackal broth is highly esteemed as a table delicacy. A friendly sheik dissented vehemently when it was intimated that as jackals fed on carrion the broth must have a horrible flavor. "It is only a question of knowing how to prepare it," he said. "You put the jackal, skin and all, for two hours into a vessel of boiling water, then transfer it to another vessel. This process is repeated three times. After ten hours' boiling in five different waters, the carrion flavor disappears and the broth is delicious."—London Chronicle.

the mistake of his advisers; hence it happens that King George is the only person in Great Britain who cannot arrest a suspected felon, even if such a one were to be seen by him entering Buckingham palace or Windsor castle. The reason for this is because no action for wrongful arrest could lie against him, and therefore if the person arrested by him were proved innocent there would then be a wrong without a remedy. Another legal disability of the king is that he is barred of all rights in matters relating to land after a lapse of sixty years. He is also prohibited from serving on a jury or from giving evidence.

Until so comparatively recent a period as 1870 if a subject were convicted of treason or felony the king could claim his property. Another lapsed prerogative of the crown is one known as "corody." During its existence a king who wanted to advance the interests of a royal chaplain could compel a bishop to support such a clergyman until a benefice had been found for him. Nowadays he has not even the right of founding a bishopric or creating ecclesiastical jurisdiction. Similarly he must always be a member of the Church of England and cannot change his religion.

The theory that the king "reigns, but does not govern" is amply borne out by the political system of the country. While the members of parliament are his majesty's "faithful commons," they have certain privileges which he himself does not possess. Thus King George can summon or prorogue parliament at will, but he cannot prolong it beyond a definite period. Similarly he is absolutely debarred from imposing any sort of taxation whatever without first securing the consent of parliament. So jealously guarded is this privilege that a king cannot create new officers with new fees or annex new fees to existing officers, as such a course would be considered as imposing a fresh tax. In bygone times, however, when an English monarch was in want of funds he would levy taxes right and left and without asking anybody.

The franchise does not extend to English monarchs. King George is one of the few men possessing a genuine stake in the country without the privilege of recording a vote. — London Bellman.

GOWNS AND OMENS.

Odd Superstitions That Darken the Dressmaker's Shop.

"Women who wear fine dresses are as superstitious as the girls who make them," said a dressmaker. "If the little accidents that happen in the workroom were not mercifully concealed from the owners of rich gowns they would be sick with apprehension half the time. I had one customer who refused to accept a very expensive dress because a girl who assisted with the fitting dropped a pair of scissors, which fell point down and stuck in the floor. That meant an order for mourning within six months. The customer hoped that by refusing the hoodoo dress she could avert the calamity, but the precaution was useless. In less than three months her father was dead."

"Girls are especially particular in their work on wedding dresses, for if a tiny drop of blood from a pricked finger should fall on the gown the bride would surely die before the end of the year. Then there is green thread. Whether the customer is there to see it or not, no dressmaker will keep green thread near spools of another color. Green thread used for basting means the return of a dress for alterations, and there is enough trouble of that kind in a dressmaking establishment without deliberately bidding for it."

"Women who are themselves superstitious are never surprised or offended at a sewing girl's untidy coiffure. The girls tumble their hair about on purpose when working on a large order, for it is a sacred belief among dressmakers that a hair inadvertently worked into the garment shows that more work is coming soon from the same customer."—New York Sun.

TRUTHFUL ADVERTISING THE BASIS OF SUCCESS.

Since the Ingredients Entering Peruna Are Known, Its Power as a Cathartic Remedy and Tonic is Understood.

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—The active ingredients entering the most popular household remedy in the world have been made known to the public. This means a new era in the advertising of popular family medicines—Peruna leads. Peruna contains among other things, golden seal, powerful in its effect upon the mucous membranes. Cedron seed, a rare medicine and unsurpassed tonic. Cubebs, valuable in nasal catarrh and affections of the kidneys and bladder. Stone root, valuable for the nerves, mucous membranes as well as in dropsy and indigestion.

Your money back if Purity Flour does not prove entirely satisfactory in the baking.

DON'T simply buy flour from the dollar and cent side of it. Buy high-quality flour. That means PURITY FLOUR. The first little extra cost is more than made up by the extra number of loaves of bread it makes—by the superiority of the bread and pastry in sweetness of flavor and nourishing qualities. Buying Purity Flour is a safe investment. You get large returns, not only on account of Purity's ability to produce more, but because Purity contains the greater nutriment and the vim of a strong hard wheat flour. Food made from Purity Flour gives the consumer health, snap and force, which cannot be gained from the use of the weaker soft wheat flour.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Hennequin's Infant Tablets

Save Babies' Lives. For Babies and Small Children. (Made in France.)

Dr. Hennequin's Infant Tablets saved our little girl's life. Three doctors said she could not live. The Tablets cured her.—Mr. E. R. McBurnie, Napanee, Ont.

My baby was so weak from sickness that he could hardly walk. We thought he would die. We could find nothing to help him. I was given a sample package of three Hennequin Tablets; we used them; I saw a change at once. We secured the Tablets and our baby improved every day, and is now a bright, fat, good natured boy; you could not believe he was the same child. They definitely cured my baby and saved his life. I believe them to be the best medicine ever sold for babies. Mothers if your babies are not well take my advice and try these Tablets.—Mrs. JAMES RIDDELL, Barrydale, Ont.

We have hundreds of such letters. If the Tablets were not what you need we would not offer to give them away and prepay them. If your baby is not well send for trial package. Hennequin Tablets have the letter "H" stamped upon them—this is your guarantee. All dealers, 25c per package, or 5 for $1.00 sent post-paid to any address.

LETTERS OF A SON IN THE MAKING TO HIS DAD.

—By REX McEVROY

[Mr. McEvoy will write for this paper a series of letters from the west. They will appear from time to time under the above heading, and will give a picture of the great Canadian west from the standpoint of a young Ontario man going out there to make his way. These letters should be full of interest for every Ontario father.]

No. 2.

Winnipeg, Aug. 20th, 1911.

My Dear Dad:—

I am a long way from home now, but I didn't remember it when I got off the train here, and almost the first person I ran into was Bill Dodson, who used to keep store over at the corners. He's been out here three years now, and he has a fine house on one of the best streets in town and drives an automobile. He took me in it up to his house to dinner and asked about all the folks round home. He may be east next winter. He has done pretty well contracting.

My last letter was from Heron Bay, after our first glimpse of Lake Superior. That same night, before it got dark, we stopped at Jackfish to take on coal. The C. P. R. has an immense coaling place here perched by the side of the line on the steep slope of a hill. While we were waiting there we could see a large steamer lying at the wharf below us. The coal was hauled up out of its hold in great buckets, which were hoisted by cables far above our heads to where dump cars were standing on a track on a lofty trestle. As soon as the cars were full they were run off down the track to a pocket or hopper, where they were automatically emptied. These pockets have chutes over a siding on which coal cars are put to be loaded. These cars are sent east to supply the engines of the C. P. R. on the long run through places where coal is not obtainable.

After leaving Jackfish we passed round a most remarkable horseshoe where the track looped right round the bay on a bank built up a long way above the water. While going round the curve I could see the engine and the first six ears of our train from my window. At first I thought the engine belonged to another train.

That night I waked about one o'clock and found that the train was standing still. I raised the blind at my window—that is one advantage of having a lower berth—and looked out of the window. Two giant buildings of a grey color towered up right outside my window, and I recognized them at once from pictures as the grain elevators of Port William. They are tremendous buildings and they reminded me from the outlines that I could see dimly against the night sky, of the pictures of Notre Dame cathedral in Montreal. Our barn wouldn't be knee high to a grasshopper beside one of these elevators. They are enormous. They were the first thing to remind me that we were getting pretty near the West and its great wheat fields, and you may be sure I was pretty interested. I just gazed at them till we started off again, which was not long, and the last I saw of Port William was a great black rugged hill standing out against the sky with electric lights twinkling in the town beneath it. I am told that this mountain was thought by the Indians to be a sleeping giant. Well, he will sure be a surprised giant if he ever wakes up and sees Fort William and Port Arthur at his feet, for

CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE
RUE BARBETTE

CHAPTER I.

Reginald Brett, barrister-at-law and amateur detective, had seldom been more at peace with the world and his own conscience than when he entered the dining-room of his cosy flat this bright October morning.

Since the famous affair of Lady Delia Lyle's disappearance and death, he had not been busy, and the joy of healthy idleness is only known to the hard worker. Again, while dressing, he had received a letter inviting him to a quiet shoot at a delightful place in the country.

All these things blended with happy inconsequence to render Brett contented in mind and affable in manner.

"It's a fine morning, Smith," he said cheerily, as he settled himself at the table where his "man" was already pouring out the coffee.

"Bee-utiful, sir," said Smith.

"Smith?"

"Yessir."

"Not even the best English autumn weather can stand being called 'bee-utiful.' Don't do it. You will open the flood-gates of heaven."

Smith laughed decorously. He had not the slightest idea what his master meant, but if it pleased Mr. Brett to be jocose, it was the duty of a servant who knew his place to be responsive.

The barrister fully understood Smith's delicate appreciation—and its limits. He instantly noticed that the morning paper, instead of reposing next to his folded napkin, was placed out of reach on a sideboard, and that the eggs and bacon made their appearance half a minute too soon.

As an expert swordsman delights to execute a pass en tierce with an umbrella, so did the cleverest analytical detective of the age resolve to amaze his servitor.

"Smith," he said suddenly, composing his features to their most severe cross-examination aspect, "I think the arrangement is an excellent one."

"What arrangement, sir?"

"That Mrs. Smith and yourself should have a few days' holiday, while Mrs. Smith's brother takes your place during my forthcoming visit to Lord Northallerton's—why, man, what is the matter? Is it too hot?"—for the cover Smith had lifted off the bacon and eggs clattered violently on the table.

"'Ot, sir. 'Ot isn't the word. You're a fair lick, that's what you are."

Smith invariably dropped his h's when he became excited.

"Smith, I insist that you shall not call me names. Pass the paper."

"But, sir—"

"Pass the paper. Utter another word and I refuse to accept Mrs. Smith's brother as your locum tenens."

Smith was silenced by the last terrible epithet. Yet he was so manifestly nervous that Brett re-they were extremely uncommunicative as to their business in London. They were employed during the day at the Albert Gate house. The presence in the mansion, both day and night, of a strong force of Metropolitan police, tended to excite local curiosity to an intense degree, but no clear conception of the business of the occupants was allowed to reach the public.

"Whatever it was that took place, the full particulars were not only well known to the authorities—the presence of the police hints even at Governmental sanction—but matters proceeded on normal lines until yesterday morning.

"Then it became clear that a remarkable development must have occurred during the preceding night, as the whole of the Dutch workmen and the Turkish attendants were taken off in cabs by the police, not to Morton Street Police Station, but to Scotland Yard; this in itself being a most unusual course to adopt. They are unquestionably detained in custody, but they have not yet been charged before a magistrate.

"The police, later in the day, carried off some of these men's personal belongings, from both hotel and mansion.

"A sinister aspect was given to the foregoing mysterious proceedings by the presence at Albert Gate, early in the day, of two police surgeons, who were followed, about twelve o'clock, by Dr. Tennyson Coke, the greatest living authority on toxicology.

"Dr. Coke and the other medical gentlemen subsequently refused to impart the slightest information as to the reasons that led the police to seek their services, and the Scotland Yard authorities are adamant in the matter.

"The representative of a news agency was threatened with arrest for trespass when he endeavored to gain admission to the Albert Gate house, and it is quite evident that the police are determined to prevent the facts from leaking out at present—if they can by any means accomplish their wishes."

Brett read this interesting statement twice slowly. It fascinated him. Its very vagueness, its admissions of inability to tell what had really happened, its adroit use of such phrases as "Turkish gentlemen of high rank," "Noted experts in the diamond-cutting industry," "The greatest living authority on toxicology," betrayed the hand of the disappointed journalistic artist.

"Excellent," he murmured aloud. "It is the breath of battle to my nostrils. I ought to tip Smith for my breakfast. Had I read this earlier, I would not have eaten a morsel."

He carefully examined the page at the back. It contained matter of no consequence—a London County Council debate—so he took a pair of scissors from his pocket and cut out the complete item,

"That is very curious," said the earl, momentarily startled. But he was too preoccupied by his thoughts to pay much heed to the incident. He merely glanced at the cutting and went on:

"Yes, that is it. Well, Edith—Miss Talbot, I mean—vows that she won't marry me until this beastly business is cleared up. Of course, we all know that Jack didn't slope with the diamonds. He's tied up or dead, for sure. But—no matter what may have become of him—why the dickens that should stop Edith from marrying me is more than I can fathom. Just look at some of the women in Society. They don't leave it to their relatives to be mixed up in a scandal, I can tell you. Still, there you are. Edith is jolly clever and awfully determined, so you've got to find him, Mr. Brett. Dead or alive, he must be found, and cleared."

"He shall," said Brett, gazing into the fire.

The quiet, self-reliant voice steadied the young peer. He checked an imminent flow of words, picked up the newspaper slip again, and this time read it. Then he blushed.

"You must think me very stupid, Mr. Brett, to burst out in such a manner when you probably have never heard of the people I am talking about."

"You will tell me, Lord Fairholme, if you get quietly to work, and try to speak, so far as you find it possible, in chronological sequence."

(To be continued.)

QUACKS STILL AROUND

Even Belief in Witchcraft Prevails in Some Portions of England and Wales

Witchcraft has arrived at the dignity of mention in a Government Blue-book. In a Local Government Board report issued recently in London it is stated that in a few of the more outlying rural districts (of England and Wales) belief in witchcraft is still held by a few people.

Herbals are said to be chiefly popular in the Midlands and North, where some vaunt spurious degrees and give certificates which are actually accepted by registrars of death. They "seriously diminish the chances of cure, lead to a great amount of unnecessary pain and suffering and premature death," and have caused the spread of small-pox and other infectious diseases by ignorant diagnosis and mistaken treatment.

The North is also the chosen ground of the bonesetter, and in parts of Wales belief in these men is said to be implicit.

Other sources of danger dealt with are unqualified dentists posing as "Institutes" and the like, who "sacrifice on an enormous scale healthy teeth," supply ill-fitting teeth, and poison with anaesthetics of which they have no knowledge; unqualified opticians who write all sorts of letters after their names, and injure eyesight with worthless glasses; and quacks who sell nostrums at shops or street corners to cure cancer, consumption, and other grave diseases, which lead to the spread of disease and death.

THOSE FINGER PRINTS

Tell-Tale Evidence in Identifying and Tracing Criminals

The science of finger-prints is com-interested. I just gazed at them till we started off again, which was not long, and the last I saw of Fort William was a great black rugged hill standing out against the sky with electric lights twinkling in the town beneath it. I am told that this mountain was thought by the Indians to be a sleeping giant. Well, he will sure be a surprised giant if he ever wakes up and sees Fort William and Port Arthur at his feet, for they must be pretty busy places from what I could see from the window, and they say that their development has practically all been in the last ten years.

I woke up at Dryden, where the Ontario Government has an experimental farm, so you can judge that there must be some quantity of good agricultural land in this end of the Province. It is a good lumbering district, too, and large piles of lumber in a wood yard near the station are the most prominent things to be seen from the train. There is a brick yard here, too, that seems to turn out quite a lot of bricks for the country round.

I was up and ready for breakfast by eight o'clock by my watch. I thought I would have breakfast in the dining car for a change, but I found that I was an hour too early, as at Fort William the watches of westbound travellers must all be put back an hour. It is the nearest thing to living your life over again that can be imagined. I would rather not live it over again just before meals, and I decided not to wait, so got my own breakfast out of the grub mother put up in the telescope valise for me.

We stopped at Kenora, which used to be called Rat Portage, in the morning. It's quite a town, with substantial brick buildings. It has a large brick Railway Y. M. C. A. building, close to the station. The place is right close to Keewatin, and both are on the Lake of the Woods. There are lots of islands in the lake, and there are pretty houses on them, half hidden by the trees. A school teacher who was in our car says that twenty-one Frenchmen were massacred by the Indians on this lake by the Sioux Indians in 1736. An exploring party discovered the bones of the victims in 1907. You don't think of Indians and scalping when you look at the pretty, quiet lake to-day.

I saw the shops the Government is building for the transcontinental railway at Transcona, not six miles out of Winnipeg. They are tremendous shops—everything seems to be on a big scale out here—and quite a town has grown up round them. We got to Winnipeg not long after noon. The teacher said that the first European to put foot on the present site of Winnipeg was a Frenchman named La Verendrye, who came here 160 years ago. They say that there are 170,000 people here now, and the place looks to be going ahead at a great rate. Building is going on in every direction, and some great buildings are being added to those which already line Portage and Main streets. The Bank of Montreal certainly thinks that the West is going to have lots of money, for they are putting up a fine building that I saw, right in the heart of the town, and it is to have a vault about a hundred feet square, the floor of which will be eighty feet below the street. That will hold a considerable amount of money and valuables.

You meet all sorts of people on the streets of Winnipeg. You can tell what a mixed population there is when the word "Office" at the Emigration bureau has to be written in eight languages. I took a copy of it. Here it is:

OFFICE
SKRFSTOFA	KONTOR
BUREAU	KANZELEY
URIAD	KONTOOR
IRODA

Everybody seems to get along with English, however, so I guess the foreigners must mostly be sent out to the prairies.

Good-bye for the present. Loving son, JIM.

not call me names. Pass the paper."

"But, sir—"

"Pass the paper. Utter another word and I refuse to accept Mrs. Smith's brother as your locum tenens."

Smith was silenced by the last terrible epithet. Yet he was so manifestly nervous that Brett resolved to enlighten him before plunging into the day's news.

"For the last time, Smith," he said, "I will explain to you why it is hopeless for you to think of concealing tradesmen's commissions from me."

The shot went home, but the enemy was acquainted with this method of attack, and did not wince.

"You knew that Lord Northallerton had recently invited me to his October pheasant-shooting. During the last few days a youth, who grotesquely reproduces Mrs. Smith's most prominent features, has mysteriously tenanted the kitchen, ill-cleaned my boots, and bungled over the studs in my shirts. This morning a letter came with the crest and the Northallerton postmark. Really, Smith, considering that you have now breathed the same air as myself for eight long years, I did not expect to be called on for an explanation. Besides, you have destroyed a masterpiece."

"Sir—" began Smith.

"Oh, I understand; there is nothing broken but your reputation. Don't you see that the mere placing of the newspaper at a distance, so that you might have a chance to speak before I opened it, was a subtle stroke, worthy of Lecoq. Yet you demand feeble words. What a pity! Know, Smith, that true genius is dumb. Speech may be silvery, but silence is surely golden."

The barrister solemnly unfolded the paper, and Smith faded from the room. On a page usually devoted to important announcements, the following paragraphs stood forth in the boldness of leaded type—

"MYSTERIOUS OCCURRENCE IN THE WEST END."

"An affair of some magnitude—perhaps a remarkable crime—has taken place in an Albert Gate mansion."

"Owing to the reticence of the authorities, it is at present impossible to arrive at a definite conclusion as to the nature or extent of the incident, but it is quite certain that public interest will be much excited when details are forthcoming. All sorts of rumors attain credence in the locality, the murder of several prominent persons being not the least persistent of these. Without, however, giving currency to idle speculation several authentic statements may be grouped into a connected form."

"Four weeks ago a party of Turkish gentlemen of high rank in Constantinople, arrived in London and took up their abode in the house in question, after some structural alterations, pointing at great security within and without, had been planned and executed."

"Attending these Turkish gentlemen, or officials, was a numerous suite of Moslem guards and servants, whilst, immediately following their arrival, came from Amsterdam some dozen noted experts in the diamond-cutting industry. These were lodged in a neighboring private hotel, where Smith for my breakfast. Had I read this earlier, I would not have eaten a morsel."

He carefully examined the page at the back. It contained matter of no consequence—a London County Council debate—so he took a pair of scissors from his pocket and cut out the complete item, placing the slip as a votive offering in front of a finely executed bust of Edgar Allen Poe, that stood on a bookcase behind him.

Within three minutes the scissors were again employed. The new cutting ran—

"There is trouble at Yildiz Kiosk. A Reuter's telegram from Constantinople states that a near relative of the Sultan has fled to France. The Porte have asked the French Government to apprehend him, but the French Ambassador has informed Riez Pasha that this course is impracticable in the absence of any criminal charge."

"These two are one," said the barrister, as he turned towards Poe's bust and laid the slip by the side of its predecessor. This time he had mutilated a critique of an Ibsenite drama.

The rest of the newspaper's contents had no special interest for him, and he soon threw aside the journal in order to rise, light a cigarette, and muster sufficient energy to write a telegram accepting Lord Northallerton's invitation for the following day.

He was on the point of reaching for a telegraph form when Smith entered with a card. It bore the name and address—

"The Earl of Fairholme, Stanhope Gate."

"Curious," thought Brett. "Where is his lordship?" he said aloud—"at the door, or in the street?"

(His flat was on the second floor). "In a keb, sir."

"Bring his lordship up."

A rapid glance at "Debrett" revealed that the Earl of Fairholme was thirty, unmarried, the fourteenth of his line, and the possessor of country seats at Fairholme, Warwickshire, and Glen Spey, Inverness.

The earl entered, an athletic, well-groomed man, one whose lines were usually cast in pleasant places, but who was now in an unwonted state of flurry and annoyance.

Each man was favorably impressed by the other. His lordship produced an introductory card, and Brett was astonished to find that it bore the name of the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

"I have come—" commenced his lordship hesitatingly.

But the barrister broke in. "You have had a bad night, Lord Fairholme. You wish for a long and comfortable chat. Now, won't you start with a whisky and soda, light a cigar, and draw an easy chair near the fire?"

"Pon my honor, Mr. Brett, you begin well. You give me confidence. Those are the first cheerful words I have heard during twenty-four hours."

The earl was easily manoeuvred into a strong light. Then he made a fresh start.

"You have doubtless heard of this Albert Gate affair, Mr. Brett?"

"You mean this?" said the other, rising and handing to his visitor the longer paragraph of the two he had selected from the newspaper.

corners to cure cancer, consumption, and other grave diseases, which lead to the spread of disease and death.

THOSE FINGER PRINTS

Tell-Tale Evidence in Identifying and Tracing Criminals

The science of finger-prints is comparatively young. Though Scotland Yard possesses some tens of thousands of records, it was only in 1901 that the system of identification by finger-print was officially adopted.

But in that short time the authorities have proved that their system is almost infallible. It has enabled them to make no less than forty-four thousand identifications, and that without error, so far as is known.

The bulbs of the fingers of human beings are marked with a number of very fine ridges running in certain directions, and arranged in patterns. These are classed under four primary types—arches, loops, whorls, and composites, and it has been proved that these patterns persist in all their details throughout the whole period of human life.

As a consequence, the police officials whenever summoned to investigate a case of crime, search first for finger-prints, and these can usually be found. When an arrest is made, finger-prints are taken from the prisoner's hand, and if they tally with those taken on the scene of the crime one of the strongest pieces of evidence it is possible to obtain is there against him.

The finger-print collection of Scotland Yard is now a huge one, and a search amongst these records will frequently enable them to discover who the culprit of a misdeed happens to be, so that finger-prints are not only a form of identification, but a valuable help in tracing criminals.

Naturally, these finger-print impressions are jealously guarded.

THE LARGEST LOAF

Baked Recently in Texas—Weighed 140 Pounds—12 Feet Long

The largest loaf of bread in the world was baked the other day by Andrew Newberg, of Austin, Texas. This gigantic mass of the Staff of Life weighed 140 pounds, and was two feet high, three feet wide, and twelve feet long.

After the ingredients were mixed, the baking process consumed more than an hour, a special oven being used for the purpose.

The loaf was sent to a barbecue at Moulton, where it was cut and distributed to a large crowd. Mr. Newberg accompanied the bread to its destination to see that it was safely carried.

By making this loaf, Mr. Newberg breaks his own record for the largest loaf of bread in the world, which was one weighing a hundred pounds, sent to the Louisiana Exhibition in 1904.

A TERRIBLE RECORD OF CHILDREN'S DEATHS

As every mother knows the death rate of little ones in Canada during the hot summer months far exceeds that of any other season of the year. The reason for this is that the excessive heat brings on those dreaded troubles, cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and other stomach and bowel complaints. These come on so quickly and with such little warning that the mother is beyond help before she realizes he is ill. During the hot summer months the mother must be constantly on her guard to see that baby's bowels are working regularly and his little stomach is kept sweet and pure. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in the home as they are the mother's greatest friend. A dose now and then will prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly they will be quickly banished by the Tablets. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FOUND HIS BONES

Skeleton Believed to be That of Murdered Envoy Brought to Light in German Wood

A skeleton found in a wood near the village of Quitzwang, Germany, may turn out to be that of Lord Bathurst, the English Ambassador at Vienna, who disappeared on the 25th of November, 1899, as he was returning to England.

The Ambassador's mysterious disappearance caused great excitement throughout Europe. Early in the spring of 1899, Lord Bathurst had been sent on a secret mission to the Vienna Court, and at the conclusion of the peace meeting at Schonbrunn, on the 18th of October of the same year, he received orders to return home. He started on the journey, and travelled from Berlin under the name of Koch, a merchant. On November 25 he arrived in Perleberg. Here he entered an hotel beside the posting station. In the evening, when the journey should have been resumed, Lord Bathurst was missing. His overcoat was found later on a heap of wood in the cellar of the posting station, and his legging in a wood near the village of Quitzwang.

There was a secret military inquiry into Lord Bathurst's disappearance, and a rumor was circulated that he had been murdered by the order of Napoleon. This rumor was credited in some quarters, as, at the time, the enmity against France in England had reached its highest stage.

When the inquiry into the envoy's disappearance came to naught, prominent criminologists and historians occupied themselves with the case without, however, arriving at any conclusion.

Now, near the same spot where Lord Bathurst's legging was found, a man's skeleton has been discovered. It is believed to be that of the English Ambassador.

THE SEAMAN BARONET

A similar case of a titled gentleman serving before the mast was recently mentioned in the Probate Court, when the Earl of Eg-

CRANIUMS OF THE GREAT

Prominent Men Have Heads Shaped According to the Profession They Pursue

One of the most entertaining features of the coming Universal Races Congress in London will be a collection of portraits of the highest types of mankind produced by various countries. These will include Cabinet Ministers, heads of universities, scientific celebrities, and probably, great writers and musicians.

"Our idea," said Mr. Gustav Spiller, the organizer, "is to show that the prominent or great men of all countries have heads that are very similar in essential features. A man of one country who has forced himself into prominence in any sphere of life, is bound to resemble men of other countries who are in similar positions. This should be shown clearly by the portraits, and they should also show that politics produces one universal type, science another, music another, and so on. Recognition of this should tend to universal understanding and friendship."

FINE BIRDS IN OLD LONDON

Beautiful Feathered Creatures From All Over the World on Show

The king among the more than 2,000 birds on view at the London Cage Bird Association's annual show at the Royal Horticultural Hall, Westminster, is a handsome specimen of the greater bird of Paradise in full plumage. It belongs to Mr. R. Pauwels, a famous Belgian amateur collector, and is worth $7,500.

Mr. Pauwels has brought the bird to England in company with other valuable rarities especially for the present show. His exhibits include a black-capped lory, a Cuban woodpecker, a pair of white mynahs, and a pair of sky-blue budgerigars, most of which are new birds to the English show bench. The greater bird of Paradise dominates them all, however, and it is probable that no other specimen of its breed will be seen for many years at an exhibition in this country, owing to the decree which came into force on July 1 last prohibiting the export of birds of Paradise from Dutch Guinea, the home of the species, except for scientific purposes.

THAT USELESS HYPHEN

Someone with Love for Figures Proves It is Criminal Waste

Although the general tendency is to do away with unnecessary marks of punctuation, the hyphen is still retained in "to-day," "to-night," and "to-morrow." That the retaining of the hyphen in these words is not only useless but absolutely criminal is easily demonstrated by a bit of simple mathematics.

There are 178,236,592 English-speaking people. The words "to-day," "to-night," and "to-morrow" are together used forty-eight times daily by every person—five of these being written out in long hand. Thus the daily output of hyphens in these words totals $91,182,960. Taking the average of a written hyphen to be one quarter of an inch, you have a straight line 3,864 miles long. At the usual rate of writing it would take one man seventy-six years to insert the hyphens in these words, and his salary would amount to about $30,000.

But, avoiding all theory, "to-day," "to-night," and "to-morrow" are daily hyphenated four times each on 234,192 typewriters, and three times daily on 184,212 linotype machines. Remembering that a pressure of 1 ounce is required to strike a typewriter key, and 3½ ounces to depress a linotype, we see that in writing these hyphens a total of $52,974 foot-pounds of energy is expended, or enough to draw a passenger train half-a-dozen times from London to Edinburgh and back. To avoid appearing too critical, no mention has been made of the waste of ink and paper, but this would approximate in value the daily bread supply of London, Manchester, and Glasgow.

MEN'S HATS IN CHURCH

The question of women wearing hats in church recalls the fact that men also formerly wore theirs at worship.

Pepys shows that in the seventeenth century both men and women wore their hats to worship.

"To church," he writes, "and heard a simple fellow open the praise of church musique, and exclaiming against men wearing their hats on in the church."

Later he notes that he saw a minister "preach with his hat off . . . which I never saw before."

The hat was then an integral part of both male and female costume, and Pepys catches "a strange cold in my head by flinging off my hat at dinner."

"I know it," replied her last owner, with an easy air.

"You didn't say anything to me about it," said the purchaser, his face flushed with anger.

Temperance Veteran Journeyed 5,000 Miles in Thirteen Months

Enthusiasm in a cause one has at heart overcomes many obstacles which would be otherwise insurmountable. For instance, Mr. John Abbey, the well-known temperance veteran, spent over forty years in England, where he rendered yeoman service in the Eastern Counties, and then proceeded to South Africa to help on the cause over there. Mr. Abbey has journeyed no fewer than 5,000 miles during the last thirteen months. In addition, he has delivered 200 addresses and taken 15,000 pledges in the colleges and schools, from both teachers and scholars.

A PARABLE

Two spiders who dwelt in different parts of a church chanced to meet together in the aisle one day when out for a constitutional.

"How are you getting on?" said spider No. 1 to spider No. 2.

"Oh, moderately," was the reply. "I don't feel very comfortable on Sundays. I live in the pulpit, under the cushion, and on that day the parson comes and bangs the book and sends his flats on the side, and I have to keep very close, or else some day I think he'll hit me. He bangs with such force that I know he'll squash me to a jelly."

"Oh, you come and live with me," said his companion. "I'm never troubled; I am always comfortable, and never disturbed from one year's end to the other."

"Indeed!" said the other spider.

"And where do you live?"

"Oh, I live in the poor-box," was the reply.

THE BLIND RECTOR

The career of the Rev. H. J. R. Marston, the blind rector of Belgrave Chapel, London, provides a striking example of a man's triumph over infirmity. Mr. Marston lost his sight when he was about to enter Eton, and went to a school for blind boys at Worcester. In addition to dead languages, he speaks and writes German, French, Italian and Spanish, and has preached in German in Whitechapel. He uses a typewriter, plays cricket and football with ringing balls, and rides horses. During his holidays he walks from ten to fourteen miles a day, and four or five when in town. And every thing he does he does with a will.

DESTROYED ON FORCED RUN

DANGER TO MEN SHUT IN STOCKHOLD OF VESSEL.

Heat, Fire and Steam All Threaten the Brave Workers Down Below.

Those who win victories at sea really owe them to the arms of the stokers. The stoker is a soldier who fights every day; he has to be ceaselessly watching; and on the alert; he is the only witness of his obscure heroism, says London Sphere.

The hardest time for a furnace gang is during a torpedo-destroyer trial a l'outrance. Before a vessel is admitted for service it is forced to submit to a series of engagements that are called trials, and that are particularly laborious in these trials of "full force," or "to the death," the boilers and engines have a more merciless time than they would undergo in normal service.

It is spectacle well worth the trouble to watch a furnace gang during one of these trials. One must descend backward by the narrow trap which opens on the bridge and go down the quarterdeck ladder, which penetrates swiftly below. Then one is in the stokehold.

Besides the chief of the gang there are eight men. When everyone is below it seems at first that there is no room to move, so narrow is the space; before and behind the two furnaces limit it; between them are two pumps, the quarterdeck ladder, the ventlator and all the apparatus of pipes, levers, chains and implements. But it is, nevertheless, there that these men

SUPPLY A GREAT NEED.

All the apparently incongruous apparatus which surrounds them forms a whole so harmonious that no one part can be out of order without upsetting the rest. The pumps, force cold water back into the boilers; this circulates in a cluster of innumerable pipes—thousands encircle the boiler—licked all over by the flames. All these pipes open into a great cylindrical reservoir, the chest or storehouse for steam. From the reservoir comes the system of pipes which conducts the steam beyond the boilers to the engines; in the engines the steam parts with its energy and is transformed anew into water in the condenser, so that the pumps can take it again, and the again commences without cessation the same cycle. Some cylinders containing several tons of water constitute a reserve, which is used only to repair the wastage.

At the command of the chief the sheet-iron door is closed and the stokehold is henceforth isolated; it is a prison completely shut in by sheet iron. The ventilator drives in large waves of air, which it sucks in from without, air which cannot escape until it has passed the grating where the coal is burning.

The flames from the furnaces unexpectedly throw out burning splinters, the boilers rumble and vibrate as if possessed with a desire to revolt. Behind their back and closed fronts, at the edges of the doors, at almost imperceptible chinks, the fire shows itself in crack, a stoker must loosen the hook, rake out some of the glowing coal, strive to reach the bars of the grate, force out some of them, and then by means of the space thus made hastily rake the blazing mass of cinders into the water. If he has not the time and the explosion takes place the chief throws the ventilator wide open at the risk of making the splinters fly in order to drive back

THE FIRE AND STEAM.

Then if there is still time he throws himself flat on his stomach like the others, his head under a sack, a handkerchief between his teeth because of the steam that burns the lungs, and then he waits.

The danger that they await is of a kind that rarely comes to the lives of most people. Suppose that in the engines the fault had been discovered, the crack riveted, that the last effort had finally succeeded, that the risk alone had been run, first some tiny drops, then the water itself, would reappear at the bottom of the water level. Without a word, with work suspended for only five minutes, the men would resume their labor, but with the difference that tools would seem light, the air refreshing and even the regular sound of the pumps would be sweet in their ears.

But unhappily too often the end is more tragic. It would take much space to record even recent tragedies. At Cherbourg at the end of a torpedo trial a few years ago an intake of flames set the boiler alight, terrified the gang of men, and then stopped of itself, and for some seconds the men thought they were let off with merely a great fright. But soon after there was a fearful cry, the cry of a man mortally injured, a cry which was never forgotten by those who heard it. It came from an inspector whose clothes were burning. For a second he wreithed in the room, then with the movement of one out of his mind he mounted the ladder, opened the trap, leaped on the bridge and then threw himself into the sea, where his last cries were stifled.

SIR THOMAS MOORE, BART

Cork Aristocrat Peddled Coal Till
He Wed a Scotch Wife.

Ireland has never lacked quaint and romantic personalities. Sir Thomas Moore is the owner of what must not be described as a mushroom title. It did not grow in a night nor was it conferred on him for any political service. Sir Thomas is no mere knight, he is a full-fledged baronet, but as in the case of many of the Irish aristocracy his title did not bring with it any of the rich things of this world. So Sir Thomas Moore, Bart. was obliged for quite a number of years to resort to the expedient of hawking coals for a living in the streets of the Rebel City, where he became a conspicuous character.

Sir Thomas's finances could not even reach the dignity of the usual horse and trolley, mostly adopted by coal hawkers in Cork streets. A donkey and barrow had to suffice, and from this barrow the baronet weighed out coal from 14lbs. upwards to the democratic citizens of his native town.

There was however some satisfaction to Sir Thomas in feeling that his poor customers enjoyed the unusual honor of being served in

IRISH FOUGHT FOR CROWN

FAMOUS REGIMENTS OF IRISH SLAUGHTERED.

The Royal Irish Regiment Shed It's Blood Like Water at Namur.

An exceedingly interesting history of the bravery of the Irish soldiers in fighting for the crown of Great Britain has been written by Lieutenant-Colonel G. Le M. Gretton, of which the following is a brief condensation:

The history of the Irish regiments in our army is a very picturesque one. For example, the Fourth Royals Dragoons Guards, formerly the First Irish Horse, fought in the Peninsula with Wellington, in the heavy cavalry charge at Balacava, and at Tel-el-Kebir. The Fifth Royal Irish Lancers fought as "The Irish Dragoons" with Marlborough at Blenheim, Ramillies, Oudenarde and Malplaquet, winning on the battlefield, together with the Scots Greys, the right to wear the Grenadier bearskin. Only the Greys now retain it. The Sixth Inniskilling Dragoons (raised at the same time as the Fifth Lancers) fought at Dettingen, took part in the charge of the Union Brigade at Waterloo, and added to its fame in the Heavy Cavalry Brigade charge at Balacava. The Eighth Royal Irish Hussars, raised by William III. fought in Spain under, Peterborough in Queen Anne's War, did splendid work in India against the Hahratas, and won wider fame still in the Light Brigade charge at Balacava. Six other Irish cavalry regiments, now disbanded, did good service to the British flag in various Wars. And of our Irish infantry, the fame of the Inniskilling Fusiliers (the old Twenty-seventh, dating from 1690) is world-wide. They gave their lives for the Empire on half a hundred "stricken fields"—among these Waterloo, "where 500 men fell and every officer but one was knocked over, without the regiment moving an inch or firing a shot." The Royal Irish Rifles had their part in winning no fewer than 10 of Wellington's Peninsular victories; the Royal Irish Fusiliers are the same old Eighty-seventh, "the Faugh-a-Ballagh Boys," who in hand-to-hand fight won the first Napoleonic Eagle taken by the British Army. And the glory can never fade of the Connaught Rangers, who shed their blood like water for the honor of the British flag at Badajoz, Fuentes D'Onoro and Waterloo, Picton's favorite corps when there was in hand "business with the cold iron."

A PICTURESQUE STORY.

The story of the Royal Irish Regiment is quite as picturesque as any that the Irish part of the army can supply. No fewer than fifteen "Battle Honors" grace their colors, recording duty done all the world over; literally so for the Royal Regiment of Ireland has fought in Europe, in Asia, in America, in Africa, in Australasia. They won their famous motto, "Virtutis Namurcensis Premium," at the outset of their career, two hundred and sixteen years ago, and the man who gave it to them was one of the great leaders in war of European History, land War; service in Afghanistan; the battle of Tel-el-Kebir; magnificent work in the Nile expedition which Lord Wolesley led in his gallant effort to rescue Gordon; the Black Mountain and Tirah campaigns on the Indian frontier; the South African War—such are more recent events in the record of the Royal Irish.

MONARCHS OF THE AIR.

Will Man Ever Emulate the Frigate-Bird or Albatross?

Early in the morning the great vulture of North Africa leaves his eyrie in the mountains and soars away into the sky, rising to such a height that the human eye, straining against the sun-bathed sky, fails to perceive him.

All day long, hour after hour, he swings or hovers, never dropping unless his keen eyes perceive carrion beneath, and not until sunset does he wing his way back, apparently as fresh as when he started. This vulture has been watched by the hour through powerful telescopes, and never once seen to give so much as a single flap with his wings.

Man has been studying bird-flight for generations past. He has done his best to imitate it, he has gone deep into its problems, and has put forward all kinds of ingenious theories. And at the end of it all, even now that he himself is beginning to master the air by means of a rigid screw-driven plane, he has to confess that the problem of soaring flight is well-nigh insoluble.

For a very long time the common explanation of soaring flight was that soaring birds, like the vulture, took advantage of air currents. It is a fact that some birds, like the albatross, need a breeze to enable them to sail through the air; but there are others, such as the frigate, or man-of-war bird, which can rise in the calm and float all day without a motion of their broad pinions.

The wings of the frigate-bird have an expanse of ten to twelve feet, and it can fly at any pace up to a hundred miles an hour, and can remain for a week on the wing without once perching.

The albatross of the Southern Hemisphere has been known to follow a sailing ship for a fortnight at a time, apparently never resting. Its wing expanse is greater even than that of the condor, one bird that was shot off the Cape of Good Hope measuring seventeen and a half feet from wing-tip to wing-tip.

From these figures it might be gathered that the larger the wing expanse of any particular bird the greater its powers of flight.

Yet here we strike another snag. The powers of flight in various birds are not by any means proportionate to the bearing surface of their wings.

The stork, for instance, can fly magnificently. On its annual migration it covers two to three thousand miles, and will cross the Mediterranean with the greatest ease. Now, the stork weighs eight times as much as a pigeon, yet in proportion to its weight has only half as much wing surface.

But a bird of prey must be able to do much more than support its own weight in the air. It has to lift its kill from the ground and or in luminous spots; the water and the cinders below resemble a stream of lava variegated by gold. Everywhere there is an opaque obscurity; it seems as if the shadows slip in without ceasing from the open doors of the storehouses. The atmosphere is heavy, thickened with smoke, filled with steam. Above your head the pipes twist themselves confusedly. Very high up two small and dirty portholes shed a milky light, which scarcely shows the last rungs of the quarterdeck ladder. Everything vibrates, the ventilator snorts, the air emits strident groans, the steam whistles.

It pumps drive back the water regularly, if the fresh water replaces exactly and without cessation, the wastage in steam, no part of the sheet iron or the mass of tubes can get red-hot, and every one feels secure. But it is necessary that nothing gets out of gear in all this complex assembly of boilers, pipes, engines, condensers and pumps. Unfortunately, water is capricious. Sometimes, without apparent cause, when everything seems in order, it slowly lowers below the water level. Immediately this is observed the men work the regulating taps, the pumps are driven with more force to try to accelerate the pace, and all the time the fire is devouring tons of coal, and still the water gets steadily lower. Sometimes the cause of the mischief is a leakage—a pipe is broken in some innermost recess by the vibrations or a joint is strained bit by bit, and the water leaks out. After some minutes the water, the faithful ally against the fire, only appears in the level when the ship rolls. Everyone watches it furtively. This is the moment when for that always means a savage rush for the foot of the ladder, fierce fighting to try to mount it, and when the trap is opened inevitably the fire rushes out and burns everything.

The chief knows what he is supposed to do in such cases; he never goes into the stokehold without repeating to himself his lesson: almost without any effort of will his brain responds to the emergency and tells him what he must accomplish. At the pace at which the vessel is going about seven liters of water leave the boiler in vapor form every second. About two minutes would elapse before the reserves of vapor and the top of the pipes could be empty. After this there would also another couple of minutes before the pipes would commence to get red-hot; then one of them would burst, and the jet of steam it would produce would drive the flames everywhere. The pipes would burst at the precise moment when the door of the furnace was opened, because the fresh air of the ventilator would pass by and strike it.

The chief immediately orders the men to cease replenishing the furnace; he then waits for one of the two precious minutes, and if no change takes place he orders the fire to be raked out. In front of the wideopen furnace, literally advancing to death if a pipe should weighed out coal from 14lbs. upwards to the democratic citizens of his native town.

There was however some satisfaction to Sir Thomas in feeling that his poor customers enjoyed the unusual honor of being served in this way by a real man of title, who moreover never manipulated the scales to the disadvantage of the buyer. They said he was a real "barrow knight."

Titles to Irish men of honor have often proved to be more of an impediment than a source of income, and so it has proved in the case of Sir Thomas Moore. No consideration, financial or otherwise, could induce him to lend his authority to wild-cat schemes where his name might be an attraction on the front page of a company promoter's prospectus. Even the blandishments of American and English heiresses, anxious to annex a title, who flattered their money bags in the face of this impecunious baronet, failed for a considerable number of years to move him from the position he had taken up of earning a modest living by the obscure occupation of coal hawker.

An amusing story is related of an English society woman who came to Cork with the hope of persuading Sir Thomas to abandon bachelorhood. She invited him to dine with her at a local hotel. The baronet left his donkey and barrow round the next block and put in an appearance at the hotel covered in coal dust and with all the other traces of his occupation thick upon him. In spite of that the lady was out for a title and was willing to take Sir Thomas to the nearest Registry Office, but no amount of beguiling or fascinating glances could soften the bachelor heart of the aristocratic coal dealer. "She came, she saw, but she did not conquer" was his observation when he told the story some time after.

But in spite of all his determination, the day came when the proud old baronet succumbed to the blandishments of a fair lady of Scotch ancestry whom he married about a year ago. Matilda Elphinstone, now Lady Moore, was the only daughter of Captain John George Elphinstone who occupied a post in India under the Indian Civil Service. Like her husband, she has passed the years of frivolous and youthful romance, but she has brought her husband a small income which has enabled him to retire in his old age from his tiring occupation of carrying coals up the rickety staircases of Cork's tenement houses.

THE HOUSE THAT JAP BUILT.

A Japanese house is built quite differently from an American or an English one. The roof, which with us is the last important part of the outward structure to be completed, is with the Japanese the first thing to be finished. All the tools used by the carpenters and joiners have a reversed action. The gimlets are threaded in the opposite way from ours; the saws are made so as to cut on the upward pull, and not on the downward thrust; screws have their threads reversed, and keyholes are always made upside-down, and the keys turned backward. In the house, if the clock is an old one it will have stationary hands, with the face revolving backward, and the hands marked 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, and so on, reckoning onward from noon.

Europe, in Asia, in America, in Africa, in Australasia. They won their famous motto, "Virtutis Nummulus Premium," at the outset of their career, two hundred and sixteen years ago, and the man who gave it to them was one of the great leaders in war of European History, King William III. who with his own eyes witnessed their splendid feat. It was on August 20, 1695, at the storming of Namur, the most formidable fortress in Europe at that day, garrisoned by veterans of the Army of the Grand Monarque. A breach had been battered in the walls, but the first assault failed. Undismayed by the confusion and depression around them, the Irishmen with a yell rushed at the breach. At first they had to scramble over the bodies of those who fell in the first attempt, but halfway up they reached the Grenadier's high-water mark, and thence struggled upwards over ground covered by no corpses but those of the Eighteenth. From the neighboring works they were tormented by cross fire, but yet pushed on, to the admiration of their foes, who through the clouds of smoke watched them gradually winning their way up the breach, the colors high in air, despite the carnage among the officers who carried them. Mad with excitement and determined to win at all cost, the regiment by a splendid effort reached the top of the breach, where the colors were planted to show the King, who from a hill behind the Abbey eagerly watched the progress of his British troops, that the Terra Nova was his. But as the men surged forward they found themselves faced by an entrenchment undamaged by the bombardment. The officers holding their lives as nothing for the honor of their country and their corps, led rush after rush against the entrenchment, but in vain. They could not reach it; guns posted on the flank of the breach mowed down whole ranks; infantry fired into them at close range. All that men could do the Eighteenth had done, but nothing could withstand such a torrent of lead; the second attack failed, and the remnants of the regiment were driven backward down the breach.

FORLORN HOPE ATTACKS.

They soon came back, "although to onlookers it seemed impossible that troops fresh from the costly failure would face another breach." Heading yet another forlorn-hope attack, the Royal Irish, with relentless heroism, captured the position with the result that before evening the fate of Namur was sealed.

Marlborough's four triumphs, Blenheim and Ramillies, Oudenarde and Malplaquet, are also on the colors of the Royal Irish and the four names represent in addition a "long series of desperate but now forgotten sieges by which fortress after fortress was wrested from the French." They helped to hold Gibraltar when the Spaniards tried to recapture the fortress in 1727; fought in the American War of Independence; took part in the defence of Toulon in the war with the French Revolution; assisted Nelson and Sir John Moore to take Corsica; and fought at Alexandria in the fierce battle in which Sir Ralph Abercrombie met his death.

The past 60 years have seen the Royal Irish at the front in almost every war in which the British army has taken part. The Crimean War and Indian Mutiny; wars in China and Burmah; the New Zealand. Now, the stork weighs eight times as much as a pigeon, yet in proportion to its weight has only half as much wing surface.

But a bird of prey must be able to do much more than support its own weight in the air. It has to lift its kill from the ground and carry it perhaps many miles up into the mountains.

What such a bird is capable of may be realized when it is said that an eagle weighing about eight pounds has been seen to pick up and carry off a young pig weighing more than double as much as itself. And there are many cases on record of eagles having carried off children weighing, with their clothes, over fourteen pounds.

If man could build an aeroplane to match the eagle, that aeroplane would only weigh, engine and all, about eighty pounds, and its pilot could carry it on its back. It would have to be able to rise with only a few feet run, to sail with safety in any gale, and to remain aloft for at least ten hours at a stretch.

PRACTICAL PHILOSOPHY.

Malicious innuendo and ridicule are cowards' weapons.

Nine out of ten rich men were poor boys. Poverty is an incentive to push. It is a well-established fact that men are so constituted that they are unable to do their best work except under pressure. It is equally true that the average man finds it extremely difficult to withstand the enervating effect of prosperity.

If you make a mistake and offend a friend don't hesitate to apologize. It will make you bigger, broader, happier, and will prove you a man instead of a sham.

When hate strikes a blow, the hater's arm is likely to be fractured by the act.

Remember in business that success depends on the man and not on the plan.

An honest man has a chance to succeed, but a dishonest man has no chance whatever.

What a lot of time would be saved if some of the time lost in hurrying hadn't been wasted.

It's a good plan to take your troubles to a philosophical friend who is big enough to point out the fact that you yourself are to blame for having troubles.

A people should be guarded against temptation to unlawful pleasures by furnishing the means of innocent ones.

THE SIZE OF BRICKS.

If bricks were made larger it would save a great deal of time and labor in building, said a contractor; but the standard has been set and any change would be attended by considerable inconvenience. In England when bricks were first made and up to sixty or seventy years ago there was a tax on bricks and in order to evade it the bricks were made of larger and larger sizes. These were used for cellars and other concealed places. To stop this fraud an act was passed in reign of George III. fixing the legal size of bricks. Early in Queen Victoria's reign the tax was taken off and bricks may now be legally made on any size whatever. But any change from the standard size would bring about great inconvenience. All calculations are made for building on this standard size, and the London and other building acts have practically fixed it.

SEDATE CITY OF LEARNING

THE SCOTTISH CAPITAL IS A BEAUTIFUL CITY.

It is The Pantheon of Patriotism and Soul of National History.

Edina, fairest and most romantic of modern cities, what wonder that the heart of every true Scotsman pulses at the very mention of the name. To the Scotsman the Modern Athens is what the Old Athens was to the Greek, the pantheon of patriotism, the soul of national history and association, says the Edinburgh Scotsman.

Surely no city of to-day can move the stranger as Edinburgh, with its mixture of romance of the past and of the life to-day in exquisite blending of beauty. He is indeed a clod who at its sight feels not an ecstasy amounting almost to pain, so lovely is this most lovable of capitals.

Nature itself has well endowed Edina. In the distance lies the sea. At one side rises the majestic rock crowned by the grim old fortress, while a mile away towers Carlton Hill, and between these extends the finest promenade in Europe with its stately edifices, its gardens, and its monuments.

What boots it to say when first Edinburgh arose. Let it suffice to state that she received her name from Edwin, King of Northumbria, a territory which in that seventh century embraced all the Northland, from the Trent upwards, including Yorkshire.

QUIET AND SEDATE

as is this city of learning to-day, in the past it was ever the focus of turbulence, of storm and passion. Men armed to the teeth then flaunted down the narrow streets, which quarrels and bloodshed claimed for their own. "The streets of high Dunedin saw lances gleam and falchions redden, and heard the slogan's deadly yell." Edinburgh's mob was known throughout Christendom as the fiercest of fighters.

It was in 1128 that David I. founded the Abbey of Holyrood, since when the city has grown in steady progression, starting with the long straggling High street, connecting the castle and Abbey, which gradually sent off branches of wynds and closes. Then a wall was built about the city, which some four centuries ago was made the metropolis of Scotland by James III.

This king, the Man of Peace, granted the citizens important privileges through the Golden Charter, and gave the craftsmen that famous banner, the Blue Blanket, wrought by the queen's own hands. In many a troublous fight has this old banner proudly flown, and unto this day it is jealously treasured by the burghers.

The throbbing story of Edinburgh's greatness is too long to mention here, though it was when Queen Mary ruled that its romance was at the highest. It is with this time that the name of John Knox is interwoven.

One must call to mind how Jenny Geddes, that doughty old kail wife of the Tron, made history by flinging her stool at the head of the Dean of St. Giles. Then came

SOME FAMOUS DISHES.

Sold for Fifty-seven Thousand Five Hundred Dollars.

In a London auction-room a few weeks ago there was sold a service of twenty-two silver-gilt dishes, so beautiful in themselves and so famous historically that they brought fifty-seven thousand five hundred dollars. The romantic story of the Harris Elizabethan banqueting-plate, as it is known, is thus told by the New York Times:

At the time when the Spanish Armada had set out to conquer England a certain John Harris commanded thirty-five volunteers on a vessel called the Adwyse, and a relative, William Harris, paid fifty pounds, a much larger sum than it is now, toward the defense of his country.

The Harrises, as a reward, obtained a considerable share of the loot from the luckless Spanish ships.

In 1581, it is known, the family possessed a few silver-gilt dishes. The spoils from the Armada permitted the making of more. Accordingly, the service was extended to fifteen dishes and seven plates, severally hall-marked for the years 1589, 1600 and 1601, and carrying the maker's mark—three trefoils and monograms. Later on the rim of each was engraved with the coat of arms of Sir Christopher Harris.

Time went on, and the civil war began. Sir Christopher's descendant held a command in the royal forces at Plymouth, and became alarmed for the safety of the heirlooms. Accordingly, he had them hidden away in a cave in the parish of Yealmpton, on Dartmoor, and the secret of their hiding-place died with him.

For nearly two hundred years the Elizabethan banqueting service lay in the ground. Then at Christmas time, 1827, the countryside rang with the story of its discovery by three Dartmoor laborers employed by a Mr. Splat of Brixham, who wished to enlarge the cave for storing potatoes. Both the Crown and Mr. Splat abandoned their claims in favor of the Harris family, and the John Harris of the day came into his own again.

Subsequently, another descendant of the family, Mrs. Cator, of Trewsbury, Cirencester, purchased the service, and by this lady's orders it was offered for sale at Christie's. When unearthed eighty-four years ago, the local experts judged it to be of Queen Anne design. The judges of to-day know better. For years collectors have been endeavoring to purchase the beautiful pieces privately, but have failed

STRUCTURE THAT GUIDED GALLEYS OF THE ROMANS.

Light Glimmered From the Old Tower Some 1,800 Years Ago.

Travelers may still see on the coast of the English Channel at Dover the ruins of a Roman lighthouse that was built at the time of the Roman conquest of Britain. Another ancient lighthouse, built less than a century after the tower at Dover, is still serving its original purpose. It was partly rebuilt and some alterations were made in it, but in the main it is the same old structure that guided the Roman galleys as they skirted the coasts of the Bay of Biscay, making their way to the Roman port of Brigantium. This is the modern harbor of La Coruna, and the lighthouse is the most ancient thing about it.

The Romans called it the Tower of Hercules, and the moderns have perpetuated the name. The exact date of its erection is not known, but inscriptions and other evidence show that it was built in the time of Trajan between 98 and 117 A. D.

TOWER OF HERCULES.

When the Roman empire fell and Rome lost the mastery of the seas the light in this tower was extinguished. For many years none of the old Roman lights lit up the sea edges of the former empire. Most of the light towers fell completely into ruins, but a fortunate chance saved the Tower of Hercules.

For many centuries it was nothing but four walls of stone, and every century added to its dilapidation; but at last, about 1684, an Englishman and a Dutchman, Consuls of their countries at La Coruna, agreeing that the building was not decayed beyond repair, had it overhauled and patched up. The light was again kindled; and though it was not kept alive for many years the repairs that had been made saved the structure from irretrievable ruin.

In 1797, more than a century after its usefulness had been revived for a short time, the exterior stairway encircling the building, by which the Romans and the two Consuls reached the lighthouse at the top had fallen completely and the Spaniards decided not to rebuild it. But they planned a thorough renovation of the tower and the work, as they completed it, is

THE TOWER OF TO-DAY.

They placed a new stairway in the interior of the structure. They tore down the upper third of the tower and completely rebuilt it. They faced the lower two-thirds with granite, marking by a slightly overhanging layer of stone the line where the ancient stairway had clung to the exterior wall. They found that the old foundations were in perfect order, and these foundations stand to-day as the Roman stone masons left them. This work was completed about 111 years ago, and every night since the light has guided the mariner along this part of the northern coast of Spain.

The light can now be seen, according to the weather conditions,

Queen Mary ruled that its romance was at the highest. It is with this time that the name of John Knox is interwoven.

THE FRIGHTFUL TIMES

When the Covenanters signed the Solemn League and Covenant with their blood, thus signing the death warrant of the faithful.

Then the old wynds and quaint streets saw terrible scenes; they saw the great Marquis of Montrose hanged and quartered, and the Marquis of Argyll dragged to execution to embrace "The sweetest maiden e'er he kissed"—the headsmen's block. And so until long after the union the troublous tale ran.

It was in the days of the Stuarts that parliament began to meet in the great hall of the castle, the place of meeting being altered later to the City Tolbooth, until the present parliament house was erected in 1631.

The glory of Edinburgh is its castle, perching on that remarkable crag which Stephenson called "A Bass Rock on dry land," a rock which in many parts to this day is unscalable. There a fortress has stood since times beyond the memory of man, while time after time the castle has been taken by the English and re-taken.

On the crowd of the castle rock is the oldest building in Edinburgh, the little Norman chapel erected by St. Margaret, some eight centuries ago. Margaret was the wife of the famous Malcolm Canmore.

Within the castle is the strong room containing the Scottish regalia. For over a hundred years the regalia was forgotten, but were discovered by Sir. Walter Scott in a large oak chest. By the conditions of the union these "honors of Scotland" must never be worn, but must always be kept in the castle.

BEAUTIFUL THOROUGHFARE.

The glory of the modern city is Princes street, which Scottish people claim provides the most magnificent view in Europe. Here stands the famous Scott monument, one of the finest monumental edifices ever erected to a man of genius. This memorial rises two hundred feet above its foundation of solid rock.

To-day there are 193 miles of streets in the city, including magnificent squares, and boasting stately buildings.

It is from its learning and from its situation that its inhabitants proudly term it the Modern Athens, a resemblance which is heightened by some splendid specimens of purely Grecian architecture.

On the heights of Calton Hill stands the National Monument, fashioned after the Pantheon at Athens, which looks like some relic of the past, from the fact that it has never been completed. It was built to commemorate the gallantry of Scottish soldiers; but scarcely the credit of the Scottish people, the funds subscribed were too small to allow the completion of the project.

Educationally considered, there is no doubt that Edinburgh stands pre-eminent. The roll of its great citizens is truly noble, from Sir Walter downwards. The beauty spots around the capital are innumerable, embracing such places as better. For years collectors have been endeavoring to purchase the beautiful pieces privately, but have failed

WATCH MARVELS.

Some Facts in Connection With Its Performance.

We hear much from time to time of the wonders of this or that complicated and intricate machine, but there are few pieces of machinery more marvellous than that of the common watch.

A watch, it may be stated as a general proposition, is the smallest, most delicate instrument of the same number of parts that has ever been devised. About 175 different pieces of material enter into its construction, and upwards of 2,400 separate operations are comprised in its manufacture.

Certain of the facts connected with its performance are well-nigh incredible when considered as a whole. A blacksmith strikes several hundred blows on his anvil in a day, and, as a matter of course, is glad when Sunday comes; but the roller jewel of a watch makes every day—and day after day—432,000 impacts against the forks, or 157,680,000 blows during the course of a year, without stop or rest—some 3,153,600,000 blows during the space of twenty years, the period for which a watch is usually guaranteed to keep good time.

But the wonder of it does not cease here. It has been calculated that the power that moves the watch is equivalent to only four times the force used in a flea's jump. The watch power is, therefore, what might be termed the equivalent of a four flea-power. One horse-power would suffice to operate 270,000,000 watches.

Furthermore, the balance-wheel of a watch is moved by this four-flea power one and forty-three one-hundredths inches with each vibration, or 3,558 $\frac{3}{4}$ miles continuously in one year.

MAN'S STRENGTH.

Maximum Strength Reached Usually at Thirty-first Year.

Inasmuch as a man's muscles develop with use, it would appear logical that the older he gets the stronger he should become, but such is not the case. Experiments made with thousands of men show that the muscles of the average man have their period of increase and decline, whether he uses them much or little. The average youth of seventeen has a lifting power of 280 pounds. By his twentieth year his power has increased to such a degree that he should be able to exert a lifting power of 320 pounds, while his maximum power is reached in his thirtieth or thirty-first year, 365 pounds then being recorded. At the expiration of the thirty-first year his power begins to decline, very gradually at first, falling but 8 pounds by the time he is forty. From forty to fifty the decrease of power is somewhat more rapid, having dropped to 330 lbs at the latter age; the average lifting power of a man of fifty, therefore, being slightly greater than that of a man of twenty. After fifty the decrease in strength is usually rapid, but the rate of decrease varies so surprisingly in individuals that it has been impossible to obtain accurate data as to average strength after that age.

CHOIR SINGER'S SALARY.

Receives $5,000 a Year for Singing Once a Sunday.

The highest-priced choir singer in the world is Corinne Rider Kelsey, who receives $5,000 a year from the First Church of Christ (Scientist) in New York for singing once every Sunday nine months in the year. In her single person she is the whole choir, and the entire appropriation for the vocal music goes to her. In addition, her outside earnings from concerts, it is claimed, bring her total income close to $20,000 a year.

For the singer with ambitions the choir has usually been a stepping-stone. Girls with more voice than means have been glad to accept a church position for the chance of being heard, with little more by way of salary than compliments and cabfare. But Mrs. Kelsey chose her field deliberately because of its freedom from the advantages of being inseparable from the theatre. She has sung in opera and knows. She was born in Rochester, New York, but early went west and received the grounding of her musical education in Chicago. Then she went to New York for further instruction. To help to pay for her lessons she sought a position in a church choir and finally found one with the First Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn. Within a year she was a concert star.

She resigned her position and, putting her earnings to still further study, went abroad. Merit and hard work won her a debut in London at Covent Garden in 1898. To most young women it would have seemed that she was on the threshold of her career. But Corinne Kelsey sat down to think over the situation. The beginner in opera, she knew, had a long wait for doubtful fame, certain competition with the best voices in the world, life without a home, and all the whims of managers and jealousies of the profession to meet. So she decided she would go back to the old field she had left—the church—as a profession. It was a crowded field, but not with voices of her quality. The well-to-do congregation of the First Church of Christ (Scientist) gave her the appreciation she craved and had the means to gratify it.

BLACK AND WHITE.

The negroes of South Africa have finer preserved teeth than any other race in the world. It is remarkable that they should be able to hold their own, in the dental sense, with their more civilised competitors, since they are so careless in regard to everything else. But the manner in which they look after their teeth is even more remarkable than the results they achieve. Twigs from trees, cut to a fine pencil-point, are the only brushes they know; ash from the fire the only paste they use. Yet when a Kaffir smiles one is afforded one of the best studies in black and white that human nature can provide.

Many a life has been wasted by parent's preference and false estimates of the child's talents.

found that the old foundations were in perfect order, and these foundations stand to-day as the Roman stone masons left them. This work was completed about 111 years ago, and every night since the light has guided the mariner along this part of the northern coast of Spain.

The light can now be seen, according to the weather conditions, at a distance of from sixteen to twenty-two miles at sea, and it is doubtless a more effective beacon than that which glimmered from the old tower some 1,800 years ago.

IN HOO-NOO-LUU-LUU.

That is How the Natives Pronounce Name of Hawaii's Capital.

Honolulu to-day is a decided mixture of nationalities and a babel of tongues. It has 14,000 Hawaiians, 12,000 Japanese, 6,300 Chinese, 5,400 Portuguese, 4,300 Americans, British and Germans, 800 Porto Ricans, 1,000 Koreans, 1,200 other nationalities.

In a short ride on the street cars—electric, if you please, says the Rosary Magazine, and furnishing very good service—one can easily see representatives of five or six nationalities and hear as many different languages spoken. First comes the natives, swarthy in complexion, with noses, lips and ears that might suggest American negroes, but with straight (not kinky) black hair and a copper color that recall the American Indian and proclaim the Polynesian.

Their language is very simple. To one who hears it for the first time comes the conviction that the aborigines expressed their sentiment in primitive vowel sounds, to which some consonants have been added.

Each vowel is sounded as in Latin, and the words are easily pronounced by one who is patient and wishes to speak distinctly. The pronunciation will be all the better if the speaker will draw out, almost drawl, the vowel sounds, for which reason the language is well suited to the doleful Hawaiian lull. Say, e. g., Hoo-noo-luu-luu, and let the word sing itself.

MARCHING IS HARD WORK.

People are apt to think soldiers very poor walkers because an army on the march covers only ten or twelve miles of ground per day. Even then a good many men fall out through fatigue, some faint, and the whole are completely done up at the end of the day. But the soldier is, nevertheless, a first-rate walker. It is all a matter of foot-tons of energy expended. Take an ordinary laborer, and his day's work will be equal to three hundred tons lifted one foot high. A man, walking seventeen miles on the level, does the same amount of muscle work. But mark, if he carries an overcoat weighing six pounds, he does 311 foot-tons. Now the soldier is a regular pack-horse, and the kit that he carries averages about 60 lb. in weight. So that he does exactly as much work in a twelve mile walk. Besides, the soldier has to "break camp" before starting, and at the finish of the march he has to pitch camp, draw water, collect fuel, clean rifles, etc., not to speak of taking sentry-go. When, as sometimes happens, an army marches twenty miles, the day's work of the soldier is really two days' work, or about 600 foot-tons.

Won Five Dollars in Gold.

Monday evening and all day Tuesday M. S. Madole's hardware store was one of the principal scenes of attraction. Mr. Waterbury, who is under contract for the Heintzman Piano Co., was giving one of his exhibitions as to endurance in piano playing. Cards were furnished and the public was invited to make guesses as to how long he would play continuously before he would be compelled to stop because of fatigue. A prize of $5 in gold would be given to the person making the closest guess. Mrs. Wm. R. Miller, of Macdonald, won the prize. At eight o'clock sharp Monday evening the piano player commenced his task and finished exactly 25 hours and 20 minutes later. Mrs. Miller's guess was 25 hours 20 minutes and 10 seconds. The next closest guess was made by Mr. Richard Richardson, who was five seconds out. The piano player did not leave his task because he could not play any longer, but because he was requested to, and there is no doubt he could have gone on for several hours longer.

Musical Tea.

On Thursday afternoon, Sept. 14th, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Paul gave the people of Napanee one of the finest musical treats ever given in town. The spacious rooms of the Oddfellow's Hall were artistically decorated with ferns and pink and white asters, and presented a most beautiful appearance from the main entrance, where the guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Paul. A number of Napanee's finest young ladies assisted Mrs. Paul in serving tea, while in the music room the programme was delighting everyone. From the programme everyone was expecting a great treat and their expectations were more than realized. Miss Alice Paul has certainly improved a great deal since we last heard her and we hesitate to speak of any one song, as all were so charmingly given, but perhaps "Villanelle," by Dell'acqua showed her voice to the best advantage. This was Miss Muriel's first appearance, and the people were surprised and delighted with her rich contralto voice. All her songs were difficult and while the aria, "O Mio Fernando," from La Favorita, showed her vocal ability, "The Cry of Rachel," by Mary Turner Salter, showed deep sympathy and feeling. Miss Marion Paul was heard for the first time and her simplicity of manner and sweetness of voice won for her the applause of everyone. Her bird songs were delightful. Mr. Mallory is already known to the Napanee people, and maintained the high reputation which he has already won. Mr. Atwood, heard for the first time in Napanee, has a splendid tenor voice, and will certainly be welcomed by the Napanee people at any time. Everyone was hoping to hear Mr. Powers and we cannot speak highly enough of his magnificent voice. The trio by Mr. Powers, Mr. Atwood and Miss Paul was one of the finest numbers rendered. In the trios by the Misses Paul, the harmony and blending of voices was very sweet, and the Hungarian duets were particularly good. Mr. Albery was a first-class accompanist, and his splendid playing must have been a great aid to the singers. Mr. Powers has just cause to be proud of his pupils and Mr. and Mrs. Paul must be proud of their daughters and gratified at the success of their Musical Tea.

You part with a quarter of your dollar and all your pain when you use Merrill's Wizard Lightning. It's a marvel. Price 25c.

Sold and recommended by T. B. Wallace, Druggist.

“Why, Hubby dear, isn't this tea all right?”

“Oh, it's not bad! But I wish you'd order some Red Rose — the kind we get at the club.”

Met an Auto.

Mr. John Cline met with what might have been a serious accident on Tuesday. He was driving on the Belleville road, just outside the town and met an auto. His horse became frightened and tried to run away, but Mr. Cline held him. The horse then took to the ditch upsetting the buggy and throwing Mr. Cline out. The horse also fell down in the ditch. Mr. Cline received a badly bruised and scratched face besides other bruises and the buggy was badly wrecked.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Thomas Sproule, a well-known farmer, at Westbrook, died on Monday evening, following a fall and fracture of his skull. During the afternoon, he went into his silo, accidentally fell forward, and, dropping five feet, his head came in contact with the cement floor. Deceased lived for three hours after the accident. He was a well-known resident, a member of the national board of the Methodist church and superintendent of the Sunday school at Westbrook. He is survived by a widow and one son, B. L. F. Sproule, who resides on the farm. Two brothers, Joseph and William, live in the same neighborhood. He was sixty-six years of age, a man of kindly heart and esteemed in the community in which he resided.

DEATHS

FULLER—At Kingston, on Monday, Sept. 18th, 1911, Margaret Jane Fuller, relict of the late John W. Fuller, in her sixty-fourth year.

Take in the Picton Fair and you will spend a day full of profit and pleasure. Profit in seeing the splendid educational features provided by the directors. Pleasure in seeing the fine programme of sports and special attractions provided for your amusement. After a hard seasons work every farmer in Lennox is entitled to a well earned holiday and he cannot spend it to better advantage, than taking in the last excursion of the season to Picton Fair per steamer Brockville, on Thursday, Sept. 28th.

Keep October 2nd to hear "King of Harpists."

your coal watered we do not put two or three pails of water on a load and then weigh it, we weigh first, then add water. We prefer putting water on at your residence.

JAMES WALTERS,

Merchant Tailoring, Napanee.

"Listen, Rose."

Bud reads:

"Madam, your own white hands are the first to touch FIVE ROSES.

"For nearly one mile it travels through "hygienic automatic processes—more "and more spotless.

"Till in a clear creamy stream it flows into "clean new packages, filled full-weight by "infallible machinery—sewed automatically."

"Goodness!" said round-eyed Rose.

Bud reads eagerly:

"Hand-proof, germ-proof. Every littlest "bit of machinery is bright—polished like "those piano keys of yours. FIVE ROSES is "healthy flour, wholesome, none like it. "Unbleached, too."

"Nobody touches my flour—but me" said Rose.

Imagine such purity—get FIVE ROSES.
